SIGNIN[illegible]G SCOUT DRIV[illegible] CAPTAINS

4,000 Names [illegible]or Workers—Mayor Crane Add[illegible] His Endorsement To Scouting.

The Cha[illegible]rman of the Boy Scout Campaign [illegible]Committee on prospects, Herbert C[illegible]arl met Thursday afternoon with [illegible]members of the "Flying Squadron." The plan of action in connection [illegible]with this work was divided into thr[illegible] sections headed by Campaign [illegible]Chairman Elva H. Bogart, Vice Chair[illegible]an John D. Schoonmaker and [illegible]Vice Chairman M. H. Herzog.

Thursday was a busy day for members of the Executive Committee as they were signing up the various team captains. Announcement of team captains will not be made until they have completed their teams. It is hoped to have the list complete by next Monday.

Compilation of prospects lists are well under way at campaign headquarters and it is expected that more than 4,000 names will be available for the workers to select from.

Scout Executive Nesslage and Campaign Manager Gordon were in conference this afternoon with Chairman Carlton S. Preston of the Troop Demonstration Committee to complete details for the boys activities during the week previous to the drive. These men will also be at Phoenicia tonight meeting with the men from Phoenicia, Shandaken, Chichester, Big Indian and Pine Hill to complete their plans for the campaign. This trip will also be used for inspection of Troop No. 1, Phoenicia, at Woodland School, John G. Roberts, Scoutmaster.

The following splendid endorsement has been received from the Hon. Walter P. Crane, Mayor of the City of Kingston, "You know of my deep interest in the boys of our community in and outside of the City of Kingston, and I certainly feel that the Boy Scouts of America is a wonderful institution for the upbuilding of the youth of the community.

"My impression of the effect which the work of the Boy Scout Movement has had is that it has given greater courage, sense of honor, sense of duty, desire to oblige and desire to assist in every way possible without seeking remuneration; that the boys have kept a better watch over their language, that a clean body and a clean mind, which should be a boy's best asset. I feel that the association of boys with the Scoutmasters—men of high character—has inspired the desire to reflect credit upon themselves and upon their order—the desire to grow with the world and make it better.

"The hikes in the open air, under the supervision of and with the association of many leaders have been for the making of better live and clean manhood. Life in the open and the touch of nature has brought about self-reliance and other virtues which might never have been aroused. The youth of the land gets high mental and same physical training and recreation, and evidences of the sturdy young American are to be seen on every hand. As an organization the Boy Scouts of America has been weighed in its achievements, has found favor, and received unstinted praise.

"I hope the Boy Scout Movement will flourish and expand until it embraces every youth in our city and county, sincerely believing that no one other organization can do more towards making the growing boy what we so ardently desire all of our boys to be—ONE HUNDRED PER CENT AMERICAN."

CANADIANS RETAIN FISHERMEN'S TROPHY

Canada retains the international fishermen's Trophy. The Nova Scotia schooner Blue Nose, defender of the cup, defeated the Yankee challenger, Columbia, Thursday in the second and deciding race of the annual regatta. In a stiff breeze that at times reached a velocity of 30 knots, the Canadian champion of the North Atlantic fishing fleet kept ahead of the American contender without much trouble all round the 34-mile course. Bluenose won the first race of the series on Monday, by a close margin.

Schoonmaker Was Questioned.

In a news item Thursday where it stated that Stanley Longyear was recalled at the hearing before the public service commission and questioned as to receipts and disbursements of his Woodstock-Kingston auto bus line, the name should have been Earle Schoonmaker instead, as the hearing on Wednesday was on the petition of Schoonmaker. Mr. Longyear had been questioned at previous hearings and the matter as to his petition had been closed.

He was removed to the Kingston City Hospital and later to Dr. Kemble's Sanitarium. The condition of his foot grew such that it was found necessary to amputate it.

Mr. LaTour for a number of years has been with Gregory & Company, the Broadway furniture house, and is widely known throughout Kingston and the Hudson river valley.

Mr. LaTour's brother, Frederick, was removed to the Benedictine Hospital on Monday.

K. H. S. AT PORT JERVIS SATURDAY

The Men That Will Be Taken Along —Pennington Junior Class President—Trial Debate Held.

Tomorrow afternoon Coach Stroup's men journey to Port Jervis and there play the football team of Port Jervis High School. Coach Stroup has been working the team hard, teaching it some new plays and also a defense against the running attack for which Port Jervis is known. A lot depends on tomorrow's game for K. H. S. If the team wins it still has a chance to come out near the top of the league, but if it loses it is out of the league fight. A few of the varsity men are ineligible for Saturday's game. The following lineup will probably start the game against Port Jervis: Bradley and Hoffman will play the ends, McLane and Messinger the tackles, Captain O'Reilly and Simonetti the guards and Cassidy center. In the backfield, Bailey at quarterback, Davenport at right halfback, Anderson at left halfback and Vogt at fullback is the combination that Coach Stroup will expect to take the ball across the line.

On Monday night the Junior Class organized and elected its officers. Jefferson Pennington was elected president, Marion Healey, vice-president, William Cranston, treasurer and secretary.

The second trial debate of the Webster-Hayne Society was held on Wednesday night. The question debated was, "Resolved, that labor unions as they exist today are beneficial to society." The affirmative was upheld by M. Rosenthal, leader, D. Eiten and one other; the negative by R. Burgevin, leader, H. Brink and R. LeWare. The debate was a lively one and the outcome was in suspense until the very end, when the judges gave a two to one decision in favor of the negative.

Thursday night at a joint meeting of the Webster-Hayne and the Lincoln-Douglas debating societies, George Hamm was elected member-at-large to the debating council.

The new principal, Professor Van Ingen, presided over his first assembly on Wednesday morning. Principal Van Ingen is well liked by all the students, especially those who have had the good fortune to be in his classes.

GREENE PROBE AN ELECTION GESTURE

Hulsapple the "Goat" So Far—In Service 29 Years, Would Soon Be Eligible For Retirement—Had No Trial.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, Nov. 2.—Civil service employes at the state capitol are aroused over what they charge as "shabby" treatment accorded Harry M. Hulsapple at the hands of Colonel Frederick Stuart Greene, state superintendent of public works.

The post of chief financial clerk in the bureau of canals, held by Hulsapple, has just been abolished by Colonel Greene. Hulsapple had been in state service for 29 years, and in one more year would have been able to have retired on half salary.

Before Colonel Green abolished Hulsapple's position, he suspended him for alleged neglect of duty. The colonel claimed Hulsapple had approved alleged exceessive bills for canal supplies.

Hulsapple's trial on the charge of neglect of duty had been under way only a few minutes when Colonel Greene announced he had decided to abolish the position. This made the trial unnecessary.

Friends of Hulsapple have openly charge that Colonel Greene abolished the position only after he found he would be unable to sustain the charges he had made against the chief financial clerk in the canal bureau. M. Vincent Ryan, former deputy attorney general, counsel for Hulsapple, told Colonel Greene point blank at the hearing that he was "unfit" to hear the case.

No more hearings in the investigation are expected to be held until after election.

REV. DR. CHASE 75 YEARS OLD

At His Death—Had Served 40 Years in Ministry and Was One of Most Active and Sincere Prohibition Workers in County.

The Rev. Platt N. Chase, Ph.D., who died at his home, No. 15 Green street, on Thursday, passed his seventy-fifth birthday little more than ten days ago, and was one of the most active men of his years in Ulster county.

His death was due to pneumonia, which followed a cold contracted last week when on his return from attending the Methodist Episcopal Church conference of the Kingston district at Windham, Greene county, he went to East Kingston the same evening to attend a church supper.

Forty years of active work as a Methodist clergyman were spent by Dr. Chase in the counties of Delaware, Westchester, Ulster, Orange, Columbia and Greene, six years being spent in the old Prattsville district of Greene county, and the rest of his time in the Kingston district. During all of those years Dr. Chase's pastorates were principally in small country villages, in all of which he formed strong friendships.

He was born October 20, 1848, at Jewett, in the town of Lexington, Greene county; received his early education in the public schools there and later at the Fort Edward Collegiate Institute. After his retirement from the active ministry, he received the degree of Ph.D. from Taylor University, of Indiana.

His pastorates while in the Kingston district were: Bovina, 1875-77; Croton, 1878-79; Stamford, 1880-82; Cloversville and Pine Hill, 1883-85; Roxbury, 1886-88; Palenville and Asbury, 1889; Phoenicia, 1890-92; North Germantown, 1893-95; Chatham, 1896-97; Red Hook, 1898-1900; Woodstock, 1901-04; Sugar Loaf and Florida, 1905-06; Esopus, 1907-09.

Upon his retirement from the active ministry at the close of his Esopus pastorate, Dr. Chase purchased the Charles B. Post residence on Green street, which had been the home of Judge Alton B. Parker many years ago, and he made numerous improvements to the property. Shortly thereafter he became supply pastor of the East Kingston Methodist Episcopal Church, and took an intense interest in its success. He continued to supply that pulpit and also supplied various other pulpits in this vicinity when called on by their pastors.

Shortly after coming to Kingston, Dr. Chase became interested in the Citizens' League, which was being formed by the Rev. William Pringle and others who believed such an organization was necessary to procure enforcement of the liquor law in the camps established by the contractors then engaged in the construction of the Ashokan reservoir and Catskill aqueduct. He became an active member of the Prohibition party and served as its chairman at the time that party ceased existence as a political organization through failure to cast sufficient votes for its candidates to retain a place on the ballot. At the time of his death he was secretary of the Citizens' League. He had served as secretary of the Prohibition county committee for a time.

Dr. Chase during the later years of his life was best known as the champion of prohibition, and most of his time was devoted to furthering that cause. Nobody ever doubted his sincerity in that cause, and he worked unceasingly in the interests of prohibition and its candidates. For several years he dominated the Prohibition party county committee and the candidates he selected for Prohibition endorsement were always endorsed. Sometimes they were enrolled Prohibitionists, sometimes they were the Democratic candidates, sometimes the Republican candidates.

Dr. Chase's predominate characteristics were determination and activity. His activity was manifested daily to Kingstonians by his daily walks throughout the city, and frequently in the country. His determination showed itself more emphatically when he met opposition in his plans. He kept persistently and doggedly at work on his plans, brooking no interference, and at times seemed to welcome opposition. To him, prohibition superseded all other matters in national and international importance and he never hesitated to speak his mind freely on the subject. He was the contributor of frequent letters to the columns of The Freeman. During the present campaign he had displayed his usual political activity up to the time of his illness, and in conscientious conformity with his beliefs, he condemned unsparingly those with whom he disagreed. He was always anxious to argue the questions personally with the people with whom he disagreed most strongly.

While his salary never had been excessive in any of his pastorates, Dr. Chase managed financial matters so as always to be able to indulge himself freely in favorite benevolences. He was a generous contributor to various church funds and boards, and in a quiet way contributed to many private charities. Charities and causes which gained his liking received not only his public advocacy but his personal support.

Shortly after coming to Kingston, an only daughter died, and her death was keenly felt both by Dr. and Mrs. Chase.

Besides church organizations, Dr. Chase was a member of the New York State Historical Association, which he joined on the occasion of its annual meeting in this city some years ago, and nearly every year since he and Mrs. Chase had attended the annual meetings and outings of the association.

Dr. Chase is survived by his wife. His funeral will take place from the St. James M. E. Church on Monday afternoon at two o'clock.

"BAD BILL" SAYS NEPHEW STRUCK FATAL BLOWS

While on the way to Sing Sing prison Thursday to serve his 20 year sentence for murder, "Bad Bill" Monroe for the first time admitted that he was guilty of the crime, but declared that his nephew, Harold Barrett, struck the blows which killed Andrew Barrett while he (Monroe) held the aged hermit. "Bad Bill" said that Andrew Barrett was alive when he left the mountain hut, but that Harold Barrett went back for something he had forgotten and it was then that the axe must have been used on the old man for the first time, killing him.

$1,000 REWARD FOR CONVICTION OF OVERLOOK MOUNTAIN FIREBUG

Offer Made by Proprietor Nugold, Who Says Someone Burned Property With $75,000 Loss—Will Promote Bungalow Colony on Top of Overlook.

Morris Nugold of Brooklyn, who is a well-known hotel man in New York, owner of the Overlook Mountain House in the Catskills, destroyed by fire Wednesday morning, stated to a reporter of The Freeman Thursday that he estimated his loss at $75,000 and that he carried no insurance. John Caulfield, the caretaker of the house, and other men he said were working at the time of the fire, just before 9 a. m., some distance away on a private road on the Overlook mountain and digging a swimming pool which he had proposed to open for the guests of the house in the near future. Mr. Nugold said that in his opinion from what he had been informed the building had been fired by incendiaries as the fire broke out in several places almost at once. He brands the story of a gathering of communists at the Overlook Mountain House as false in every particular and thinks it is possible that some misguided patriot having read the story that such a gathering had been held might have had something to do with the setting the building on fire. He said he was willing to pay a reward of $1,000 for evidence leading to the arrest and conviction of the party or parties that set the building on fire. As to the story that the house was the headquarters for German spies during the World war, Mr. Nugold stated that The Freeman was correct in its statement that investigation by the government proved its being untrue. He stated that he intended to start in at once to raise funds to improve the grounds of the historical Overlook Mountain and establish an up-to-date bungalow colony which he was satisfied would be a grand success as the scenic views from the mountain could not be surpassed anywhere in the eastern part of the United States.

COOK HAS MADE NO PROMISES

Voters should not be misled by eleventh-hour campaign stories concerning Republican candidates. Until Thursday the present campaign has been free of such misstatements.

In reference to such stories, Albert H. Cook, Republican nominee for mayor, asks The Freeman to state that he has made no promises of any kind, except the promise which he made when nominated, that if elected he would give a good clean and business-like administration to the city.

CURRENT OFFERINGS AT THE THEATRES

"Black Patti" With Harvey Minstrels Here Saturday.

The new vaudeville bill went well at the Opera House last night, five acts being put on by artists of exceptional cleverness in their widely varied lines. There is much wit and humor in the program which also has a quartet rendering popular airs and operatic selections. "East Side, West Side," an Irving Cummings independent production, is the film.

At the Opera House Saturday afternoon and evening will be the Harvey Minstrels, a battery of negro song, wit, comicalities and vaudeville and an outstanding attraction not usual to minstrel shows in Marguerite Jackson. Marguerite is called the "Black Patti" for she is a member of the negro race, but press notices without exception hail her voice as the equal of many of the brightest stars in the operatic firmament.

The Charles K. Champlin Stock Company opens a week's engagement at the Opera House Monday, with the New York success, "It is the Law," as its opening play. This is one of the best stock companies on the road.

At Keeney's tonight and tomorrow is the film "Children of Dust," a First National picture by Frank Borzage, creator of "Humoresque." Romance and reality reach heights of dramatic emotion as handled by this master write. There is no sham or "bokum" and the picture is clean and wholesome throughout.

Fire at Barclay Heights.

The Saugerties fire department was called out Wednesday evening at 11 o'clock to help subdue a blaze in Mrs. E. H. Rising's house just below "Cloverlea," her own residence property on Barclay Heights. The firemen, upon arrival, found the side of the kitchen aflame, due to some hot ashes having been placed in a paper carton, and this igniting, set the house on fire. Its early discovery and the prompt arrival of help saved the house from destruction. Abram Riell and family occupied the house, Mr. Riell being the gardener for Mrs. Rising.

BUCHHOLTZ TO STAY IN WARD

Charles H. Buchholtz, the Republican candidate for supervisor in the Tenth ward, should receive the support of every thinking voter in that ward. His business has taken him in all parts of the county, given him an unusual insight into county affairs and general conditions in the county, and has fitted him admirably for the office which he now seeks. Especially he is acquainted with the ward in which he lives, having lived there all of his life, he has become intimately acquainted with practically all of its citizens.

Those who know him personally, and most of the people in the ward do, know of his splendid character and his reputation for right dealing with his fellowmen. Never has a word of criticism been heard against either his character or personal conduct. He has been a member of the Board of Aldermen for the past two years and has exhibited great interest in the affairs of the city and conscientiously tried to perform every duty imposed upon him.

A rumor, the origin of which we have been unable to ascertain, has been circulated in the ward, that Mr. Buchholtz has sold his property there and does not intend to continue to reside there. A reporter has made a personal investigation of the rumor and finds that it grew out of the fact that Mr. Buchholtz, who in addition to his own home owned a vacant lot, recently sold the lot, but not his home, and upon this the rumor was evidently based. We can give assurances to the people of the Tenth ward that Mr. Buchholtz, if elected, will serve the people of his ward throughout his term and that he has no intention of changing his residence from the Tenth ward to any other part of the city or elsewhere.

Mr. Buchholtz's wide experience in the county as well as his intimate knowledge of city affairs has impressed on him the importance of a supervisor looking after the interests of the city and the board of supervisors.

The voters should remember to vote for Mr. Buchholtz on election day.

POUGHKEEPSIE HAS A MILLION DOLLAR BUDGET

Because of the increased valuation of city property the tax rate for 1924 is $1.91 a thousand less than that of 1923. This year's tax rate was $26.45 a thousand and next year's will be $24.54.

CORONER'S WORK IN ULSTER COUNTY

Record of Coroner Howard Humiston for Ten Months in 1923 Indicates His Value to the County.

HOWARD HUMISTON.

Some idea of the services which a coroner of Ulster county may be called on to perform is furnished by the record of Coroner Howard Humiston of Kerhonkson, who has acted in one hundred and fifty cases in which he has been called in his official capacity up to this time in the present year. There are two months left in the year.

At no time has there been more than one and a half hour's delay in reaching the scene to which Coroner Humiston has been called, due to the fact that his office is in touch with him within a limit of five minutes at all times.

Coroner Humiston is a candidate for re-election as coroner on the Republican ticket and his record is a strong recommendation for retaining him in office for another term.

HELPING OUT THE FARM WIFE

Missouri Woman in Charge of Home Economics Work of Department of Agriculture.

A Missouri woman has set out to make the lot of the farmer's wife easier. Dr. Louise Stanley, formerly dean of home economics at the University of Missouri, who recently was called to Washington to take charge of the home economics work of the Department of Agriculture, will conduct a series of studies this winter into the intimate problems of the farm home.

The work of the government in nutrition studies and reports on preparation of foods is to be carried on, but the Missouri woman will go into phases of home management neglected in the past, says a Washington letter in the Kansas City Times.

For example, here are some of the questions her department will study this winter:

How much would the farm wife contribute to the farm income if her manifold services were put down in terms of actual wages?

What textiles wear best in children's clothing on the farm?

If the farmer is to build a new house how should the kitchen be arranged for maximum convenience?

What sort of washing machine is cheapest for the farmer's wife to buy?

Doctor Stanley has submitted her program to Secretary Wallace and it has received his approval. She will make the studies in order of their relative importance to the homemakers on the farm.

"Studies of the cost of housing are at present needed. The cost of housing has increased to a relatively greater extent than any other element in the household budget," said Doctor Stanley. Estimates must be readjusted, and more definite information as to the relation of this cost to running expenses obtained.

IT REMINDED HIM OF BUNYAN

Story of Dr. Plumptre and Thackeray Apropos of Ignorance in High Places.

Apropos of ignorance in high places, the president of Magdalen college, Sir Herbert Warren, told an interesting story of Thackeray at the university extension inaugural meeting at Oxford.

"Thackeray," said Herbert, "appeared in Oxford in various capacities, once as a political candidate, and on another occasion as a lecturer on "The Four Georges." He applied to the then vice chancellor, Dr. Plumptre, master of university, who figures in "Verdant Green" as F. P., for permission to lecture, and the following conversation took place:

"'Who are you?' asked Plumptre.

"Thackeray replied: 'I am an author. I think I am fairly well known.'

"'Will you tell me the names of some of your works?' said the vice chancellor.

"'Well,' said Thackeray, 'I think on the whole the work of mine which is best known is "Vanity Fair."'

"'Oh,' replied Dr. Plumptre, 'I seem somehow to connect that with the name of Bunyan!'"

However, the vice chancellor was sufficiently satisfied to allow Thackeray to deliver his lectures.—New York Evening Post.

Orpheus and Eurydice.

Eurydice was the wife of Orpheus, killed by the bite of a serpent on her wedding night. According to classical mythology, Orpheus followed Eurydice to Hades, where, by the music of his lyre, he so charmed Pluto, the grim ruler of the infernal regions, that he won back his wife from this most inexorable of the deities. His wife, however, was restored to him only on condition that he should not look back at her until they arrived in the upper world. When they had almost reached the limit of their journey, Orpheus was so overcome by the anxiety of love that he looked around to see if Eurydice was following him, and beheld her being dragged back into the infernal regions.

Diplomacy.

The Young Bride (looking in window of jewelry store)—George, I'd love to have that bracelet.

The Husband—I can't afford to buy it for you, dear.

The Bride—But if you could, you would, wouldn't you?

The Husband—I'm afraid not.

The Bride—Why?

The Husband—It isn't good enough, dear.

The Bride—Oh, you darling!—Life.

Shortest of Sentences.

What is believed to be the record for short sentences pronounced in Fresno county, California, was imposed on George Leicht, charged with vagrancy. The judge ordered Leicht held in custody for fifteen minutes, after which he was to leave Fresno. The fifteen-minute sentence was pronounced to separate Leicht and his pal, who was arrested on the same charge.

Catty.

Nell—Mr. Kammerer is so kind. He said I took a very pretty and very artistic picture.

Bell—Indeed? And whose picture did you take, dear?—Philadelphia Ledger.

Appears Plausible.

Professor of Anthropology—It is said that the first man was found in India.

Coed—Who found him, professor?

Professor—That is not stated. Doubtless, some woman.

KINGSTON, N. Y., NOV 2 1923.

There is no man who is better known in the Ninth ward than James D. Rodman, Jr., who has been selected by the Republican party as its candidate for alderman. Mr. Rodman, who is employed at Johnson's hardware store on the Strand, has been a resident of that ward for a number of years. He is a man of sound judgment and is exceptionally well qualified to serve the ward as its representative in the common council for the ensuing two years.

David McSherry, the Republican candidate for alderman of the Sixth ward, is a man who is held in high esteem by all who know him. He has been a resident of that ward for a number of years, and is thoroughly familiar with its needs. The Sixth ward is one of the important wards of the city and should be adequately represented in the common council by a man of the high type of Mr. McSherry.

Alderman Raymond Everett, who is filling the unexpired term of Dr. Behrens, who resigned as alderman when he removed from the Eleventh ward, has shown that he is fully qualified to look after the best interests of the ward and for that reason has been selected by the Republican party as a candidate to succeed himself in the common council. Alderman Everett is one of the younger business men of the Tenth ward and should be returned to office by a big majority.

Harold V. Sharot has been selected by the Republican party as candidate for alderman of the Second ward. He is one of the younger progressive men of the ward and is thoroughly familiar with its needs. He is a man of unquestioned ability, and should be elected by a large majority. The Second ward is steadily growing in importance and should be represented in the common council by men of the high type of Mr. Sharot. No mistake will be made on November 6 by the voters of the Second ward in placing a cross mark in front of Mr. Sharot's name on the ballot.

John R. Monroe, who has been selected by the Republican party as its candidate for alderman of the Eighth ward, is a man of unquestioned integrity and of sound business judgment. The residents of that ward realize that he will bring to the office the intelligent interest and ability it requires. During the years that he has been a resident of the Eighth ward he has familiarized himself with its needs, and the voters of the ward, irrespective of party affiliation, will make no mistake in placing the cross mark before his name on the ballot on November 6.

IT TO THE VOTERS.

Next Tuesday the voters of Kingston will be called upon to select the administrative heads of the city government for the ensuing two years. The campaign this fall has been called a quiet one because there has been but little, if any, "mud-slinging." The days for those tactics are long gone by. Voters have grown accustomed to weigh the claims made by the various candidates seeking public office. They know what has been accomplished under a Republican administration. They have seen Kingston grow in importance. Voters realize that a continuance of Republican administration means a continuance in the growth and importance of our city.

Those are the reasons why Albert H. Cook will be elected mayor of Kingston on Tuesday. Mr. Cook's past record is an open book. He has made good in the past and he will make good in the future. His election means much for the progress of Kingston. As its candidate for alderman-at-large the Republican party has selected Edgar J. Dempsey, one of the younger business men of the city, who has all of the qualifications needed to ably fill that important office.

A vote for Cook and Dempsey on Tuesday means a vote for the continuance of Republican ideals and policies which have placed the city among the leaders in the Hudson river valley. These men also need the whole-hearted support of a Republican common council and in the various wards of the city the Republican party has selected representative men who will reflect credit not only upon the wards they will represent but the entire city.

Kingston needs men at the head of its government who may be depended upon to serve the best interests of all. Such men are the men who have been selected as candidates for the various city offices by the Republican party.

To insure the continued growth of Kingston no mistake will be made in voting the straight Republican ticket.

AFFECTING 21 RURAL COUNTIES.

Legislative representation in twenty-one up-state counties would be reduced, practically wiped out, were the proposal of Assemblyman Maurice Bloch, a Tammany member of the Assembly, to be advanced. Bloch possessing the Tammany instinct, introduced a proposed amendment to the Constitution which would eliminate the provision allowing each county one member of Assembly, but which would divide the entire citizen population of the state by 150, (the present number of Assembly districts), one assemblyman to be apportioned on the basis of that division.

The reason why Bloch, a Tammany member, offered this proposal is obvious. The proposition had scarcely seen the light of day before Republican members discovered another trick of Tammany to break into up-state and fasten its grip on the affairs of the farming and rural communities. It was pure politics, but fortunately the Republican majority killed the proposal, one up-state Democrat, however, Livingston of Columbia, putting his birthright in danger by voting for it. Nevertheless, it was blocked and the up-state people were protected once more from the inroads of Tammany.

With such an amendment, the following counties, because of their citizen population, which would be less than the ratio obtained by the method suggested by Bloch, would be tied up to another county and jointly represented by one assemblyman:

Allegany, Chenango, Columbia, Essex, Franklin, Genesee, Greene, Lewis, Livingston, Madison, Orleans, Putnam, Schoharie, Schuyler, Seneca, Sullivan, Tioga, Tompkins, Warren, Wyoming and Yates.

Under the circumstances, and with the evidence provided by the Bloch proposal, it would be well for the people of up-state districts to make sure that the Assemblyman remains Republican. The Bloch plan, which is the Tammany plan, would destroy legislative representation in twenty-one counties, which would be just what Tammany would desire.

RESERVE POWER.

I was reading lately in the Veterans' Magazine about Criqui the French boxer. Criqui lost a portion of his lower jaw, which was splintered by a machine gun bullet.

The jaw of a lowly sheep was inserted in its place. He was badly shattered and the writer spoke of how pale and sickly he looked immediately after the armistice, as he entered the ring for an exhibition bout. This same writer saw him about four years later, and could hardly believe he was the same man. He was a real rugged athlete.

What had brought the change?

The man's constitution and grit.

I had the pleasure of examining him before one of his bouts, and found him the real sinewy type of fighter.

My French was hardly good enough for him, but his whole manner was that of quiet reserve power.

What is reserve power?

Oh just that extra "bit" that pulls you through the emergency.

Can it be built up?

Yes, although I believe it is a quality that can be in inherited to a considerable extent, it is like any other inherited quality, good or bad. Reserve power can be built up in only one way.

Criqui built his up by constant training, and what is even more important, by constant fighting.

Your parents can present you with a body and mind capable of just so much. You can increase or decrease the reserve power by your daily habits of life in thought and action.

No man ever learned to fight without fighting. No man ever learned to play football without getting right into the scrimmage, taking a hard tackle, or tackling a hard fast player.

Now most of us respect our parents and are thankful for what they gave us in body and mind.

But is it a wise thing to be satisfied with that, and not develop what was given us?

And what is the idea?

That you get into things with your body and mind. That you enter into contests of skill and endurance, and encourage your youngsters to do the same.

There is no royal road to reserve power. It comes only by using or developing your natural given powers.

BIRD MIGRATION INTERESTS MANY License to Aid in Banding Them for Observation.

DIFFICULT TO FIX MILEAGE

Interest in bird migration is increasing, according to reports reaching the United States biological survey.

In 1915 the survey received migration notes from more than 2,000 different observers. According to recent reports, more than 10,000 persons have applied to the survey for licenses to aid in banding birds, showing how widespread is the recent development of this important phase of nature study.

Migration Mystery.

For more than 2,000 years the phenomena of bird migration have been noted; but while the extent and course of the routes traversed have of late become better known, no conclusive answer has been found to the question, "Why do North American birds migrate?"

According to one migration theory, the birds' real home is the southland. All bird life tends to overproduction and at the end of the glacial era, the birds, seeking in all directions for suitable breeding grounds with less keen competition than in their tropical winter home, gradually worked northward as the retreat of ice made habitable vast reaches of virgin country. But the winter abiding place was still the home, and to this they returned as soon as the breeding season was over.

The beginning of migration ages ago undoubtedly was intimately connected with periodic changes in the food supply. While North America possesses enormous summer supplies of bird food, the birds must return south for the winter or perish, experts point out.

Day and Night Travelers.

Some birds migrate by day, but most of them seek the cover of darkness. Day migrants include ducks and geese, which also migrate by night; hawks, swallows, the night hawk and the chimney swift. The last two, combining business and pleasure, catch their morning or evening meal during a zigzag flight that tends in the desired direction.

The daily advance of such migrants covers only a few miles and when a large body of water is encountered they pass around rather than across it. The night migrants include all the great family of warblers, the thrushes, the flycatchers, vireos, orioles, tanagers, shore birds and most of the sparrows. They usually begin their flight soon after dark and end it before dawn and go farther before than after midnight.

Migrating birds, scientists say, do not fly at their fastest speed. Their migration speed, it is said, is usually from 30 to 40 miles an hour and rarely exceeds fifty. Flights of a few hours at night, alternating with rests of one or more days, make their spring and fall advances very slow, averaging for all species not more than 20 or 25 miles a day, but with great variations of daily rate among the different species.

Hard to Fix Mileage.

The exact number of miles which a particular bird makes during one day's journey has not yet been determined and cannot be ascertained until tagging or banding of birds by means of metal rings is carried out on a more extensive scale. However, in this connection, it may be said that the United States biological survey is perfecting a wonderful and interesting system of bird banding as an aid to the study of migration. The solution of the many interesting scientific problems presented by this mystery of the bird world is of practical value in such matters as the protection and increase of migratory birds. These problems have long attracted the attention of many ornithologists, both in the United States and Europe.

The length of the migration journey of birds varies enormously. A few birds, like the grouse, quail, cardinal and Carolina wren, are more migratory. Many a bobwhite rounds out its full existence without ever going ten miles from the nest where it is hatched. Some other species, for instance, the meadow larks, the pine warbler and the black-headed grosbeak, do not venture in winter south of the breeding range.

Natures at Variance.

With them fall migration is only a withdrawal from the northern and a concentration in the southern part of the summer home—the warbler in about a fourth and the grosbeak in less than an eighth of the summer area.

In the case of the Maryland yellow-throat the breeding birds of Florida are strictly nonmigratory, while in spring and fall other yellow-throats pass through Florida in their journey between their winter home in Cuba and their summer home in New England.

The migration of the friendly robin occurs in the middle districts of the United States throughout the year, in Canada only in the summers and along the Gulf of Mexico only in the winter. Probably no individual robin is a continuous resident in any section, but the robin that nests and rears its young in or near the District of Columbia spends the winter near the gulf, while his hardy Canada-bred cousin is the winter tenant of the abandoned summer home of the southern bird.

SUCCESS OF RURAL FREE DELIVERY

The photograph shows rural free delivery carriers starting from Bloomington, Ill. Fully 50 per cent of the success of the rural free delivery mail service must be credited to the motor car. PUTTING CHAINS ON IS EASY JOB

Unless Method of Attaching Is Practiced a Bit. It Is Usually Awkward Process.

(By ERWIN GREER, President Greer College of Automotive Engineering, Chicago.)

Very often it is only that the automobile owner is not sufficiently acquainted with the method of attaching chains that causes him to take a chance when the street or pavement is wet, and not put them on. Unless the method of attaching chains is practiced a bit, it is an awkward process, and as such an automobilist rather than spend a number of minutes fumbling with what he considers to be badly fitting attachments, will run along and may meet with a serious accident.

Practice Is Helpful.

The first couple of times that chains are put on it may take a considerable while to do it, and the motorist may even believe, although he has the indicated size for his tires, that the things are not the right dimension. A little practice, however, will make attaching chains a matter of only a moment or so, and this is time that any one can well afford to spend. In putting on chains it used to be thought necessary to jack up the wheels, but now, of course, it is realized that this is not needed.

The best way is to lay the chains over the wheel with the hook part toward the rear and tuck in the other end snugly underneath the wheel in front.

When both chains are in position thus, the car is started and run ahead only a foot or so. This pulls the part of the chain that was tucked in under the front wheel taut and leaves some extending beyond the point where the wheel touches the ground. It also tightens up the hook end.

Then it is only a simple matter of joining up the ends. Of course, it is suggested that the end on the inside of the wheel be hooked up first. This can be done by hand and the chains will fit as a rule tightly enough.

Learn to Put on Chains.

By way of conclusion it is earnestly recommended that a little time be given to learning how to put on chains. It was the experience of the writer that what at first was a laborious and bungling process became after a couple of trials a matter of seconds only, with the result that "at first drop of rain" the chains go on, as they should.

DRY BATTERY FAILS RAPIDLY

In Many Instances Real Reason Is That They Are Not Protected From Moisture.

Car owners who use dry batteries often have occasion to lament the brief existence of these devices. In many cases the real reason why the dry batteries fail so rapidly is simply because they are not protected from moisture, dirt and excessive vibration. It is easy to make a stout wooden box, fitted with a cover and permanent terminal connections. The sides, bottom, ends and cover are made of hardwood three-eighths of an inch thick. The box may be made to accommodate as many cells as desired, either in single or double rows. The various parts of the box are screwed together and the inside is given an even coat of melted paraffin wax to render it moisture proof. The cover should be made to fit flush with the box sides.

LOUD CREAK GIVES WARNING

If Noise Is Noticed When Clutch Is Engaged It May Be Due to a Loose Wheel.

If a creak is noticed in a rear wheel when the clutch is engaged it may be due to a loose wheel, provided that the rear axle is of the semi-floating or three-fourths floating type, in which the wheel is not rigidly attached to the axle. In this type the wheels fit on the end of a tapered shaft and is locked tight by a large cottered nut. If the nut is not drawn up fully and the wheel is a trifle loose the axle will turn slightly when power is applied and give rise to an annoying creak. Though the wheel may seem tight upon inspection, an attempt to further tighten the nut may prove the contrary.—Automobile Digest.

GASOLINE TO BE PREFERRED

Better Than Kerosene for Washing Bearings, Cleaning Brakes and Running Board.

For all cleaning purposes, including washing of bearings, cleaning brakes and running boards, gasoline is always to be preferred to kerosene for the reason that it evaporates directly after completing the job. Gasoline, however, should not be used for external cleaning of the engine; and kerosene that is used for this purpose should only be applied when the power plant is cold.

Any opening in the valve tappet compartment when warm air can blow in is likely to result in drying the valve stems and making them stick. Such an opening, when found, can be plugged with felt.

A little scheme that makes it easier to back out of a driveway is to make a little notch in the under side of the steering wheel nearest the driver when the front wheels are in a straight-ahead position. If the driver starts backing straight and keeps the notch in the original position the car ought not to run off its course.

BURGLAR ALARM GUARDS CAR

Audible Signal Connected With Engine When Operated by Any Unauthorized Person.

The Scientific American in illustrating and describing a burglar alarm for an automobile, the invention of C. H. Summerhill of Penns Grove, N. J., says:

An object of the invention is the provision of an audible signal connected with the automobile engine through which a fluid under pressure is adapted to pass when the engine is operated by an unauthorized person, whereby the fluid will operate the signal and warn the police and public of the unauthorized operation. Means are included for maintaining the connection between the engine and the signal until the authorized operator unlocks the same.

PLAN TO ADJUST GENERATOR

Good Way to Increase Flow of Current to Battery Is to Tighten the Fan Belt.

A good way to adjust a generator to increase the flow of the current to the battery is to tighten the adjustment of the fan belt which drives the generator. This will speed up the generator and thus increase the output. Another method is by adjusting the tension of the spring on the regulator armature. Increasing the pressure raises the charging rates and decreasing the pressure lowers it.—Automobile Digest.

AUTOMOBILE PUNTS

Overheating burns up the oil, causing friction, loss of power and scored cylinders.

From 1909 to 1918 the number of automobiles in use in the United States increased 1,700 per cent.

* * *

When timing the ignition of an engine it is necessary to know when the piston reaches the top of the stroke.

* * *

Watch out for steam at radiator vent, as it indicates that the engine is overheating, a condition which may result in serious damage to the engine if not taken care of in time.

* * *

When driving at night a motorist should not stop to pick up a tire or any other article seen on the highway. This may be a trap and a gang of holdups may be hiding close by.

'MUMS, 15,000 OF THEM HERE

As Fine a Showing on Pearl Street Extension As Big City Residents Pay Highly To See.

Daily observation of normal growth, whether of something of divine or human origin, rarely causes any great surprise at the results of that growth. But when one only occasionally takes note of a growing object one is often amazed at what has been going on. While this is to be a story of Kingston's Chrysanthemum Show, it is quite likely to develop into a larger story before the last period is written.

This is the time of year when we read of annual chrysanthemum shows in New York Boston, Philadelphia, etc., and as most Kingstonians are lovers of flowers, they wish they could see one of these shows. They do not realize that if they would walk out to the Pearl Street Extension in their own home city, almost any time between the middle of September and the latter part of November—but especially just now—they would see quite as fine a show of the "Mums," as they could see by going to some distant city of larger size. Here at the Burgevin conservatories are to be seen, literally thousands of these beautiful colored, sumptuous looking, artistic blooms and just as they are growing, either by the green-house full: in large show pots or in smaller pots for home enjoyment.

It would be hard to believe one's eyes or ears when told there are some fifteen thousand growing chrysanthemum plants, from which flowers will be cut and some four thousand potted chrysanthemums, did one not know that now there are thirty-three green houses on the grounds of the Valentin Burgevin's Inc. And these autumnal glories of bloom are in all stages of development right now. Some are just opening; some have reached the height of their blossoming, some are but buds, while the pink and white Mistletoe Chrysanthemums will not bloom until Christmas. But to go through the green-houses where the mass of mammoth blooms is the greatest right now, is to take a journey one might well go far to cover. There are the lovely white Louis Pocketts; the rich orange and yellow Ruth Twombleys; the white-ball-like blooms with just a suspicion of pink (Earl Kitchener); the big old-gold plumes of the Nagarae; the famous Gharity Chrysanthemums of old wine and old gold tints: the feathery bronze and old wine blooms of the Mrs. Stevens; the sunshiny Yellow Turners, and the lovely lilac-pink Turners; the pink and bronze Anglesby; the characteristic pink Chieftain; and so on almost ad infinitum.

Walking through the houses one sees every little way, great pots of many exquisite chrysanthemum blooms, and they have a special story all their own. The thirty-odd employes of Burgevin's, so far as the plant cultivators go, are divided into junior and senior workers. Each year these workers grow these pots of chrysanthemums, competing for prizes, and when the season for blooming comes, there are five contestants from each class who are awarded money prizes and honorable mention, thus stimulating the workmen's interest and even experimental abilities as to their daily work. The prize chrysanthemums from the junior class are now on exhibition in the store on the corner of Main and Fair streets, that beauty spot in a business section of the city. The flowers are some white, some pink, others yellow, and they are remarkably perfect specimens. About the 15th of the month the senior exhibit of the "mums" will be shown at the store.

But chrysanthemums are not the only flowers for which this great floral nursery is famous. And right here comes in that larger story of a larger growth. Today, as stated above, there are thirty-three greenhouses, all in perfect condition; with the last word in heating apparatus; the most up-to-date equipment of every sort; comfortable and tidy walks through all of the houses, so that in addition to their reputation for flowers, this concern has a reputation extending to as many states as autoists come from, of having the neatest and most attractive greenhouses to be found in many states. But all this has been no mushroom growth in any sense. Immense as it now is—and its immensity will be further elaborated—it has been growing throughout the life time of George and David Burgevin and their brother, Julius. Their father, Valentin Burgevin, was a business contemporary of the late E. Winter, of music-store fame, and both inaugurated a business, music and flowers, which carried on through their sons, today attracts visitors, and compliments to Kingston. As one writes, it is easy to recall the elder Mr. Burgevin, seated in the heart of his two or three green-houses with the background of old English ivy and Bouganvella vine. Today all that stands to show for those days is a bit of the old wall and possibly some of the same ivy vine.

To come back to today, as one goes from one chrysanthemum house to another, one sees other sights; for instance, one entire house devoted to smilax and asparagus ferns. Then there are the twenty-four thousand roses, each plant a joy to look at because of its perfection of foliage and sturdy growth, quite aside from these loveliest of flowers. But if one is expecting to see as great masses of full bloom roses as one does of chrysanthemums, one is disappointed for the roses are kept closely cut, the blossoms being cut shortly after the partial development of the bud, in order that the purchaser may have roses to enjoy as they reach full bloom, rather than full bloom roses to see fade away. This year, the Burgevins have several new roses of exquisite shade of deep pink, firm texture and shapeliness of bud, known as "The America." There are a thousand plants of this beautiful rose. Other comparatively new varieties are the white Angelus and the dark crimson Crusader. But like the chrysanthemums, they must be seen to be fully appreciated.

Wandering about one comes upon hundreds upon hundreds of "Merry Christmases," either in the form of flaming Poinsettias—that is they will flame or scarlet fruited "Jerusalem Cherry Trees" or upon an entire house of ferns, luscious exotic feathery plumes of verdure; sweet peas now budding; and a host of other beautiful flowers.

And then there are the carnations, of every shade and tint; fluffy heads of spicines, some twenty-two thousand of them. When one talks so into the thousands it sounds as though here there could be no plant individuality, but that is not so. For, beside the "thousands," of some of the varieties there are many rare plants, orchids, palms, various lilies, etc., each giving expression to its own life.

Furthermore, today, whether it be christening, birthday, wedding or wedding anniversary, holiday or feast day or the day of death, flowers from the Burgevin green-houses go speedily to fulfil orders from really great distances, in their own auto delivery cars, and right in the midst of the green growing things are the two big garages where these cars are kept.

"Say it with Flowers," has come to be a slogan almost common-place today, showing how we American people are growing more and more to appreciate the necessity of beauty and particularly floral beauty about us, and in thinking over the flowers seen in the conservatories just mentioned, one is amazed at the kind of things one could say: "Purity" in white rose and lily and carnation; lovers' love in "Sweetheart roses;" love in its broadest sense in beautiful roses, with somewhat of statliness and aristocracy; dignity and almost military formation in the ranks of soldier-straight chrysanthemums or grace and colorfulness in the more feathery varieties. But since the things one could say with the flowers at Burgevin's Sons are as limitless as the flowers themselves why attempt to say more. The chrysanthemum show and all the rest must be seen to be appreciated in any adequate degree.

"JIMMY" HARE AT KIWANIS LUNCH

Famous War Correspondent and Photographer Tells of His Experiences—A Near East Appeal.

James H. Hare, globe-trotting war correspondent and photographer, spoke entertainingly of his experiences at the weekly Kiwanis luncheon, Thursday at the Y. M. C. A. drawing generously on a fund of humor and anecdote acquired through years of travel and contact with all sorts of humanity. "Jimmy" as he signs his "stuff" is not young, as he let it be known that he dwelt thirty years in London before coming to America and that since "covering" the Spanish-American War he has been employed in various parts of the world for American publications, most of his war work being done for Collier's and for Leslie's. For eighteen or twenty years he has spent annual vacations in Ulster county and took such a liking for Kingston and its vicinity that when an opportunity presented itself of becoming associated with the "leading photographic establishment" here, he took advantage of it. This occurred some weeks ago, as related in The Freeman at the time.

Just before the Spanish-American War broke out, Mr. Hare had a rapidly growing photographic business in New York city, which burned, including his cameras, negatives and all other valuable equipment. Having a wife and three children, he didn't have time to build up another business but persuaded the management of Collier's to send him to Cuba to get pictures in the Cuban rebellion against Spain. One of the incidents of this assignment was a trip with one companion through sixty miles of country from which he was barred by the Spanish and which was strongly held by their troops, to get pictures of General Gomez, the Cuban commander, and his army of rag tag and bob tail natives. He did it without damage to himself other than to his nervous system. When Americans were chased out of Cuba by the threat of war between the United States and Spain, Hare went with them as far as Key West and there got himself assigned to an American battleship from which he took many stirring photos of naval warfare. After that he was employed on the border during the long series of Mexican revolutions and the crisis between the United States and Mexico, was at the battle of Vera Cruz, then Mexico City, took the first picture of an aeroplane in flight while he was concealed in a clump of bushes at Kitty Hawk when the Wright brothers were experimenting, went to the Russo-Japanese war, two Balkan conflicts and finally, the World War, visiting the French and Italian fronts and Saloniki. In all wars he found that bullets were no respecters of persons. He had seen enough war and hoped the League of Nations or some other instrumentality would abolish it, but he believed that the old argument against Socialism applied equally to war. Human nature must change before it comes to pass.

Mr. Hare appeared unexpectedly like one of the characters out of a magazine story in place of a speaker who was scheduled to advocate the $50,000,000 bond issue for state hospitals, but who failed to get here. Before he spoke, Admiral Francis J. Higginson briefly described the necessity for continued American support of Turk-persecuted children in the Near East and introduced an Armenian woman who very feelingly told an eye-witness story of massacres, deportations and other Turk outrages. One hundred and ten thousand Christian children are still being maintained by American funds in Asia Minor and continued contributions are vital to their future. Admiral Higginson said that in spite of the many drives that are thrust upon us, this is one that cannot be ignored, being a challenge to Christianity not to abandon its own.

Miss Marie Farrell, a prize winner in pianoforte at the Ithaca Conservatory of Music, again presided at the piano.

I. V. D. Warren was awarded the attendance prize, which came from W. A. Van Valkenburgh, the secretary, and tickets were distributed for the venison dinner and ladies' night next Thursday at Lake Katrine.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to serious complications.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. (Adv.)

Can You Imagine It?

Girls, can you imagine your mother getting as great a thrill out of the new sewing machine when she was your age as you do out of that machine in the garage? And yet she did.

A man takes a great many steps for a woman before marriage, but it is nothing to the steps a woman takes for a man after marriage.

Nothing is so essential to the day's work as getting rid of the non-essential.

An' That Ain't All.

I fell for her in the book room,
'Twas a stormy night outside;
Oh, yes, of course, I took her home
That evening from the libe.
She was blue-eyes, blonde and rosy,
Rosie, I think, was her name
She had red lips 'n' everything
That camouflage a Jane.
But the best thing of all about her,
Better than all her good looks,
She was plump, and warm, and filled my arms.
Yes, filled my arms—with books.

The man who sits by the side of the road to be a friend to man these days will get a lot of dust from automobiles.

Let's Have It Quiet.

Old Fisherman (scathingly, to neighbor who has shifted his foot twice in the last five hours) "Now, now! Did ye come out here t' fish er t' make a non-stop dancing record?"

Husband (as wife shifts gears)—"That reminds me, I must stop at the boiler factory on the way home."

A young woman advertising in the want ad column says she would like a position, nursing preferred. She says she can drive a Ford sedan. A reader would like to know if she can nurse one?

By the way, men rush into it you might think debt was some kind of a circus.

No Parking.

No parking here, no parking there,
No parking on this side
No parking on a narrow street,
Try to find one that is wide.

No parking in between these signs,
Nor near a public school.
Of course, not by an engine house,
That's known by any fool.

Keep ten feet from the corner,
This rule you must not fail.
No parking by a hydrant,
Or you'll find yourself in jail.

No parking near the station.
If you go to meet a guest,
Just walk her out a block or two
That method is the best.

The ferry is forbidden, too,
To park there would be folly.
If you go to meet your aged aunt,
Just put her on the trolley.

No parking here, no parking there,
I pause here to remark
If we have to follow all these signs
Good Lord, where CAN we park?

WELL—

You can park outside the movies.
Now that sounds good to you!
But—only for an hour, mind,
And the picture lasts for two.

You can use the public parking grounds
On a cold and rainy day,
When you take your family to a show
A half a mile away.

If a member of the Kingston Club
You can park there without doubt,
But if you are the first one in,
It's a cinch you can't get out.

You can park beside the armory,
Or where they play baseball,
But aside from these few places
You cannot park at all.

So I plan to drive to the Golden Gate
Where there are no signs or tears
And I'll say to good St. Peter
"May I park for a million years?"

NOTED FOX HUNTER

Washington's Favorite Horse Was a Dapple Gray.

Writer Says Mount Vernon Had Black Fox Which Was Never Caught.

Washington was a renowned fox hunter. Mrs. Washington's grandson left in an old magazine a vivid picture of the "Colonel," as he named him, in hunting garb.

A blue coat, bright red waistcoat, buckskin knee breeches and a closely fitting black velvet cap—that was Washington as a fox hunter.

His favorite horse for the sport was a dark dapple gray called Blueskin. Custis wrote that no horse could dismount Washington, so long and strong were his legs, says Girard.

Carrying that fine figure, six feet two, and then weighing 190 pounds, was no easy job for Blueskin, yet he did it a couple of times a week and occasionally as far as 30 miles in a day.

At Mount Vernon was a black fox routed out frequently and chased for leagues, but never caught, said Mr. Custis.

"How often do they catch a fox?" I asked J. Charles Murtagh, for whom the back of a fleet horse has the cushions of a limousine beaten ten lengths at the first quarter.

"Never, or at least rarely," said he, "unless they cheat the fox. Caged too long, or set down in a strange country, he may lose his brush. Given a fair show a fox will outwit almost any pack of hounds and the best hunters."

Of course, there are hounds and then again just hounds.

Those fine packs of English hounds kept by Charles T. Mathers and Plunkett Stewart can run the legs off any thoroughbreds.

But the S. P. C. A. would pounce upon sportsmen today who should indulge in the cruelties practiced a hundred years ago by horsemen and hunters.

On the Philadelphia race track heats of four miles were run and repeated.

To decide whether the horse could outdo the hounds a race was arranged. Sixty thoroughbreds started with a small pack of hounds over a given course

The hounds won, only 12 horses finished and one of them, a valuable racer, was thereafter stone blind from overexertion

Famous Selvan ran the four-mile course in Philadelphia in four seconds under eight minutes Part of the time he was going well over 40 feet a second.

And according to one who saw the race, "the mud was knee deep"

Record was made of a horse driven to a light vehicle 12 miles in about 32 minutes.—Philadelphia Inquirer

Ocean Keeps Tragic Secret.

Disappearing in the Broadway of the Atlantic ocean, extending from the eastern end of the Panama canal toward New York city, the 7,000 ton oil tanker Swiftstar added to maritime history another incident of mystery. Loaded with 77,000 barrels of oil and manned by a crew of 28 officers and men, it recently left Los Angeles bound for a Massachusetts port. It was last heard from when entering the sea lane along the east coast, but no vessel sighted it there, and no word came from its wireless In those same waters the collier Cyclops vanished some time ago as completely as if a giant monster of the deep had stretched forth a huge hand and pulled the craft beneath the water. Evidence that disaster befell the Swiftstar was found by a schooner captain after several electric storms The sea all about was littered with splintered wood, a floating chest yielded the charred, unidentified body of a man, and for miles the surface was covered with a heavy film of oil—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Sabbath-Observing Clock.

Among the wedding presents received by the duke and duchess of York, when they were married in England a few months since, was a clock made in 1801 It was built in the hope that George III would purchase it, and is nearly five feet high Besides showing the hour, minute and second in the usual way, the clock shows the day of the week and month and the phases of the moon It has a carillon of six bells and eight different changes of time.

Every third hour, from an opening in the dial representing Whitehall, the figure of George III, Queen Charlotte and other members of the royal family appear in procession, and as the king enters a troop of horse guards canters about. There is no procession on Sundays, the mechanism stopping automatically on that day.

LONDON HAS BIG FLY FARM

Professor Raises Pests on Large Scale for Experimental Purposes—Each Female Hatches 2,000 Eggs.

How many people know that London possesses a "fly farm"? The "farm" has a herd of about two millions, and is one of the most fascinating, and at the same time repulsive, sights in town.

It consists of a small glass house about 12 feet by 6 feet, perched on the high roof of the Imperial College of Science and Technology, South Kensington. The view is magnificent, but the odor dreadful. Prof. Harold Maxwell Lefroy, the famous entomologist is the "farmer," and is very proud of his lively and ever-increasing two millions.

"It was first built in 1916," the professor explained to a writer, "after my return from Mesopotamia, where I had been studying the fly problem. The only thing to do was to breed flies, and then see how best to get rid of them. Come inside!"

He opened the door! Two million healthy flies, born and bred in a congenial temperature of 120 degrees, buzzed a welcome and fell on the visitors with touching affection. They even left their feeding grounds, several large platters of decaying matter, which hummed with their buzzing.

The food, it was explained, consisted mainly of brown bread, sugar and bananas, but didn't look in the least like these commodities except for some partly consumed banana skins

"Aren't these lovely specimens?" said the professor, fondling a heap of new-laid eggs and sweet little maggots "All good stock. We got a new strain in some time ago.

"There is no difficulty in replenishing the farm," he went on, "when the population becomes depleted by our experiments with the sprays. As one fly lays 2,000 eggs, and the eggs hatch in nine days, it does not take long to breed a million."—London Tit-Bits.

Mark Twain as a Life-Saver.

A Washingtonian, who was a friend of the great humorist, says that Mark Twain once sat in the smoking room of a steamer and listened for an hour to some remarkable stories.

"Boys," he drawled, "these feats of yours that you've been telling about recall an adventure of my own in Hannibal. There was a fire in Hannibal one night, and Old Man Hankinson got caught in the fourth story of the burning house. It looked as if he was a goner. None of the ladders was long enough to reach him. The crowd stared at one another with awed eyes Nobody could think of anything to do.

"Then all of a sudden, boys, an idea occurred to me. 'Fetch a rope!' I yelled.

"Somebody fetched a rope, and with great presence of mind I flung the end of it up to the old man. 'Tie her round your waist!' I yelled. Old Man Hankinson did so, and I pulled him down."

Musical Instruments in Mexico.

The American phonograph has a practical monopoly of the phonograph trade in Mexico City. All the well-known makes are handled and sales are quite large. Credit terms are extended by the majority of dealers. American phonograph records and music rolls for player pianos also enjoy practical monopolies. Sales of German pianos, however, are believed to be quite large throughout Mexico, due to former popularity and because prices are considerably lower than for the American makes There is also a large demand for the German violin and mouth instruments However, delivery dates are very uncertain on German instruments, and dealers now claim that German manufacturers are tightening up their credit terms and asking in some cases cash against documents, according to a United States commerce report.

The Climax.

"What will this operation on the nose cost me, doctor?" inquired the wealthy patient

"One thousand dollars, madam," returned the doctor.

"Isn't that an awful price?" she asked

"Certainly. But you expect to tell your stylish friends a great deal about this operation, do you not?"

"I—I suppose so."

"Of course. So you must be in a position to conclude—'and the doctor charged me an awful price.'"

Bringing It Down to Date

The Artist—Yes, I can touch up that portrait of your former husband. What do you wish done to it?

Mrs. Multiwed—Just paint out the whiskers and put some hair on the head and it'll look near enough like my present husband

Remembered It.

Mrs Niblick—You think so much of your old golf you don't even remember when we were married.

Niblick—Sure I do. It was the day after I sank the thirty-foot putt.—Judge.

An Expert's Advice.

Wife—My goodness, the pie doesn't seem to be very good.

Hubbie—What's the trouble with it? I found it all right.

Wife—Well, there's something wrong. Willie refused a second piece.

And No Doctors, Either.

Bings—Here's an article telling about some radical orator stating that wealth is a disease.

Bangs—Well, I'd like to be afflicted with a few incurable diseases.

MARGARINE NOT A "SUBSTITUTE" SAY MANUFACTURERS

Is a Fine, Modern Food

Margarine is made and sold in an honest, straightforward fashion in accordance with the best ideals of modern American food production and marketing. It reaches the consumer in a carton that is plainly stamped "oleomargarine," so that the customer knows exactly what she is buying. In fact the high character of margarine as a pure, wholesome food is so pronounced that the producers are proud to be identified with their product.

Conscious of the sound ethical basis upon which the industry is operating, the margarine manufacturer naturally resents the constant allusion to his product as a "substitute," or an "equivalent."- The use of the word "butterine" is to be deplored, as it gives the impression that margarine seeks to be sold in place of another and similar product. The food writers are as much to blame in this respect as anybody. Most of their definitions start, "Margarine is a substitute—," and even some dictionaries follow suit.

Margarine today is a prepared spread, but is no more artificial than any other food that is prepared by alternate heating, blending and chilling. The flavor of margarine pleases the taste of a great number of persons. Its ingredients are the best grade of their kind, are of known purity and wholesomeness. Modern methods of production are responsible for it being possible to offer margarine to the consumer at a price that is most moderate. It is a combination of value that has proved satisfactory to the taste of thousands of women—hence its wide sale. And it is marketed solely on its own merit.

The immense increase in the use of margarine is witness to its wide popularity and to its merit as a spread and as a shortening. Last year the demand for margarine amounted to 209,000,000 pounds and of this large quantity Jelke GOOD LUCK Margarine, the largest selling brand, and the finest spread for bread, represented a large share. Such a record, made solely on the merit of the product, shows the advantage of doing business with branded merchandise, and is a crying refutation of any desire on the part of the margarine manufacturer to sell his product as a substitute.

FITE DELIVERS FIRST LECTURE

On European Conditions—England's Problem Unemployment, Not Ruhr —Rich Germans Sacrificing Country—France's People As Energetic And Economical As Before.

The first of the series of six lectures to be given by Dr. Emerson D. Fite of the Vassar faculty, at the chapel of the First Dutch Church, under the auspices of the Kingston Junior League, was delivered Thursday afternoon and was largely attended. The subjects of the lectures, the lecturer and the cause for which the lectures are being given, "Child Welfare Work," have all combined to make this year's audience larger than last year's.

Dr. Fite said he was pleased to be back in Kingston and to meet so many former friends, after a pleasant and profitable summer in Europe, especially in England and France. Germany he found so uncomfortable that he made but a short stay, going on into the Balkans.

Dr. Fite said it seems that England is still just as hard hit as in 1920, and may perhaps have an even harder winter because of the great extent of unemployment. Beggars and unemployed men are common in all of the English cities and towns. England is supporting her men who are out of work which is terribly hard on the taxpayers, especially as these unemployed men living on government bounty seem quite satisfied to do so and not work. The outlook for the future in that respect is terrifying.

The speaker thought that Lloyd George's assuming that the economic troubles and unemployment in England was entirely due to the Ruhr situation as the cause was entirely wrong. While in Bucharest, Dr. Fite became acquainted with a large cotton manufacturer of Great Britain, who was in the Near East selling his goods, and had many conversations with him. This cotton manufacturer said that the troubles with the manufacturing of cotton goods in England lay in India, not in the Ruhr and gave three reasons. In spite of the fact that Gardhi is still in prison his followers have been boycotting English made cotton goods for the past three or four years, and the boycott is still quite extensive. In the second place while the Indians buy considerable cotton, they are a poor people and buy only until the price goes to a certain high mark. It reached that mark during the war and these poor people have not been able to buy as formerly. In the third place there is an extensive movement in the direction of building cotton factories in India, right next to the cotton fields, thus saving the cost of transportation of this fabric to India. Indian capital is doing much of this, but there is also considerable British capital involved. While all this is causing the depression in English manufactory of cotton, it will not be a permanent condition for several reasons. The Indians are poor workers for any length of time, it being estimated that it would take three Indians to do the work in this line that could be done by one Englishman. Then, too, the best raw cotton does not come from India itself; the best comes from Egypt; the second best from America and the third best from India, so it will not long really compete with England. And if some hundred and twenty-five or two hundred cotton factories in England do close down this winter, as they doubtless will, it will not be because of the conditions in the Ruhr section.

Again the coal mining industry in England is being helped rather than hurt by the Ruhr situation. Germany, since it cannot get coal, or will not, from the Ruhr, is buying in such large quantities from England, that her total shipments have increased tremendously, though England is not advertising that fact. There are still many rich English people and they have invested heavily in German marks which have fallen almost out of sight. Naturally they desire dividends on their investments and so want to see Germany become normal. Germany has been relying to a certain extent, upon England to help her, but this England will do only up to a certain line. Then will come the common fear with France, of Germany, and that common fear will hold England and France together against Germany in the last analysis.

In France conditions are better than in England, for France is an agricultural country, and while prices are heavy, the crops have been very large.

In France the peasants are in better financial condition than they have ever been. They acquired an immense amount of money during the war from the American doughboy, the Canadian and Australian soldiers, etc. While they have kept that money, they have not increased their scale of living, so that the French individual is better off than before. It is only national France whose finances have gone wrong. There is no loafing, no begging, no unemployment in France.

Dr. Fite said he was tremendously impressed with the present work of rebuilding devastated areas in France. Two summers ago it had not begun and last year there was but little of it going on. This summer the building is going on everywhere and on a large scale, costing into the millions, and promising a beautiful new France. Dr. Fite visited Verdun and was amazed at the reconstruction work already accomplished there as well as in towns to the north of Paris. Yet here is this persistent object lesson continually in the minds of the French as they build. "Germany destroyed all this, and who should pay for its rebuilding, Germany or We?"

On entering Germany Dr. Fite found still a different, very different situation. He could not get his American Exchange Company Travellers' check cashed anywhere, but did finally succeed in getting some German money from the American consul. He thought such a place was not for him and got out as soon as possible. At the Wittenberg station near Berlin where he took the train two fine looking young German men were in the same compartment with him; and as is the custom everywhere they made haste to find out in their newspapers the quotation of the mark and the American dollar. On reading the quotation wherein the mark had taken a bad drop, one man went deathly pale and left the train. He had lost all he had. Practically the same thing had happened to his landlady at Wittenberg the night before and it is and has been happening not only daily but hourly to thousands of Germans for some time.

Here also, the peasants had received large sums of money from the soldiers of the Allies, especially the Americans stationed in Germany. The prices of their products have increased but they have not increased their scale of living, so while they have no money worth anything now, they still have their crops which afford food. Here is another unusual condition, where people were in debt, the same to be paid in marks, as so many were, and so many who could have formerly paid those debts easily, they have no money and they are therefore practically out of debt. There are no mortgages on property, and no city is in debt. What is more, the national government is not in debt, for its debt was to be paid in marks and they are worth nothing, practically, so that when peace really comes Germany will be a nation without debt. England is staggering under an enormous tax burden, but is suffering this agony now, so that when peace comes in fact, she will be on a firm financial foundation, while Germany, at that time won't have any national debt to pay. To be sure this has been accomplished by suicide, which Dr. Fite considered the limit of cowardice in a nation or an individual.

Last year when in Germany, the speaker found the people exchanging their marks for something of value, especially were the people putting their wealth into erecting new buildings and enlarging their factories. Now there is no new building. Today it is best to buy things to eat. No one has money for investment. Eating is the occupation of all. Last year there were many beautiful stores filled with beautiful things for sale and there were customers galore. Today there is no one to buy. Dr. Fite mentioned one serious phase of the building activity. When at its height, many new factories were built; old factories were improved and much of the people's earnings went into efficient equipment, so that they are ready for the future. What does that mean? If we count the last war to have been a conflict for the securing of the best economic conditions, the best markets in which Germany did everything possible to crush her rivals, how much more keen and bitter will the economic pressure be, when peace comes, than it was in 1914? What will become of England, France, Belgium, etc., where there is no money for improved equipment? It is a terrifying aspect.

Getting food is the momentous problem in Germany today. There are quantities and quantities of food in the country and the masses of the people are in the cities, and have no money to buy the food anyway. Still, Dr. Fite warned that it was not necessary to be too sympathetic over Germany for she will not starve. But other things may happen. The farmers don't want to work and then sell their products for almost nothing. Yet if the people in the cities have no money with which to buy they are likely to go and try to help themselves, and it will require rare finesse and statemanship to provide food without creating trouble.

If England faces a hard winter, how infinitely harder will the winter be in Germany! Dr. Fite was wondering whether or no those lovely people of Oberammergau, for instance, would have a bite to eat right now.

It has been said that the rich people of Germany have been traitors to their country, saving their own fortunes at the government's expense. Industrially they have sacrificed all but themselves.

Dr. Fite did not anticipate that Germany will be broken up into small republics, yet he could see how the people in the Rhine valley might be tempted to get out from the clutches of German paper money bad enough to try and set up a government for themselves to save themselves.

So, Dr. Fite said, considering the sadness that faces one on every side, and the fear that he would be robbed of what money he had, he left Germany in great haste.

In closing, Dr. Fite showed how many, many things are continually happening because of Germany's attitude of trying to escape her debts, through suicide. Turkey had been brought back into power, being bought back by England and France to get her from joining Germany in the next war. It was an English and French necessity.

England and France have had to let Italy and many of the smaller countries do about as they please in order to hold them from the grasp of Germany. So while England and France are industrial rivals and neither wants to see the other a dominant European power, after a certain point they will be sure to unite to keep Germany down.

As for Germany's immediate future, the lecturer could not see but little other than starvation ahead. It would take a long time to create a new currency, for they would have to get the gold to back it, and where could Germany, today, get a loan of gold? "Will the rich Germans help out their country? They have not been patriotic yet, but have sacrificed their country, thus far."

Next Thursday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock Dr. Fite will lecture in the same place on "The Balkans."

MR. AND MRS. WOLF

"I have looked for some time for a nice place, and I think I have found it now," said Mrs Wolf.

"I looked at a good many. In fact, I almost set up housekeeping in several and cleaned the dens out, but I didn't like them finally. I thought I could get a nicer home."

"Ah, Mrs. Wolf," said Mr. Wolf, "this is beautiful. This is a perfect home. And how lovely this weather is."

"Dear Mr. Wolf, would any one imagine that the wild and dangerous and blood thirsty wolf would talk about the weather," Mrs Wolf chuckled.

"Ah, they don't know," said Mr. Wolf. "They do not know how we are when we are at home. We love each other so.

"We whisper all sorts of little nothings to each other, though to us they are not 'nothings' They're 'somethings' of great importance.

"Yes, this home is perfect Well, Mrs. Wolf, I had a dangerous time not long ago. I thought I was caught."

"Ah, don't tell me that," said Mrs. Wolf.

"But you need not worry now," said Mr. Wolf, "for you see that I am here, all safe and sound."

"Yes, yes," said Mrs. Wolf, "but I cannot bear to think that you have been exposed to danger.

"But you have escaped! Yes, you have escaped, and you will be more careful in the future?"

"I am careful," said Mr. Wolf, "but I will be even more careful. I had been hunting and having a little meal and was taking a nap away from the hunting ground—but not far enough away.

"Don't Tell Me That," Said Mrs. Wolf.

"For an old hunter came after me and almost would have had me.

"But the wind was in the right direction so I could get a whiff of the human being coming toward me.

"If it had not been for that wind I would not have been here now."

"Oh, Mr. Wolf, what a narrow escape And how thankful I am it was an escape!

"I wish I could give the wind a present to show my gratitude, but the wind isn't the kind of a creature or a thing to whom one can give a present.

"But I am grateful, oh, so grateful," Mrs Wolf said.

"Yes," Mr. Wolf continued, "we want to be safe, for we only have each other."

At that, tears came in Mrs. Wolf's eyes.

"There, there," he said, "there will be other little wolves, and I am happy, for we have each other. That means everything, Mrs. Wolf"

"Oh yes, Mr. Wolf, "that means everything, and, dear mate, you are so good to me.

"How well I remember, too, when there were the dear little wolf babies—three darling babies there were last spring. And after they were born and I was so afraid that something would happen to them, you kept us supplied with food so that I did not have to leave them.

"But oh, Mr. Wolf, for the longest time I thought every time I came back to the den that somehow or other I would find my babies. Again and again I looked for them—after they had been killed and taken away.

"Oh dear, how sad it was. They were never there. And then we stood it for as long as we could, and now we have another den.

"Yes, and we have a fine hill from which we can see what is going on.

"And we will be happy, and there will be other little wolves," Mrs Wolf said

"But best of all, Mr. Wolf, there is my dear mate."

And then she laughed.

"How strangely our talk would sound to people. They do not know that wolves are different at home from when they see them.

"And after all I think it is better to be nice in the home than outside it. At any rate that is what you think, and it is what I think, for we are two devoted wolves."

"Two devoted wolves is what we are," said Mr. Wolf as he patted Mrs. Wolf on the shoulder and looked at her out of his eyes which now were very loving and affectionate

SOME GOOD DESSERTS

A good pie is always a welcome dessert and if one observes the kind of pie usually in demand at most eating places the apple pie takes the lead A good pie must have a crust rich enough to be tender and flaky and baked long enough to be thoroughly cooked The best cooks say that a pie should bake (after the first few minutes in a hot oven to bake the crust, then in a slow oven to cook the apples) usually an hour The filling of apple with a little sugar for sweetening is not sufficient to make a tasty pie It needs butter and plenty of it in small cubes mixed with the apple and if the pie is made of very juicy apples; a tablespoonful of flour will keep it from losing its delicious juice Such flavor as is suited to the family, may be used—nutmeg cinnamon, a dash of cloves or a bit of grated lemon peel Then after the pie is ready for the oven bind it with two and one half inch strip of thin muslin dipped into cold water; this insures the pie from any overflow of juice. This cloth should be removed at once when the pie is taken from the oven.

Pineapple Jelly.—Pour two cupfuls of boiling water over one half cupful of sugar and add two tablespoonfuls of gelatin soaked in two tablespoonfuls of cold water for five minutes; then add one cupful of pineapple juice drained from canned pineapple, and three tablespoonfuls of lemon juice. Strain. When the mixture begins to thicken, add one and one-third cupfuls of pineapple cubes. Turn into a mold, first dipped into cold water and chill thoroughly.

Newport Pudding.—Boil one cupful of sugar with one cupful of water for three minutes. Add one tablespoonful of gelatin soaked in one fourth of a cupful of cold water. Beat the mixture as it begins to thicken, then add the whites of three eggs beaten stiff and continue beating twenty minutes Divide the mixture into thirds, flavor and color to suit the taste Arrange in layers in a mold

Serge, Twill for Chic New Outfit

Navy Blue, or Neutral Beige and Gray Popular for Fall Wear.

Come what will in the world of fashion, there is no such thing as oblivion for the tailored frock of serge or twill, in navy blue or neutral beige and gray, declares a fashion correspondent in the Kansas City Star. It holds its own season after season, and the remarkable thing is that designers contrive to give it a distinctly new aspect each time it appears.

This year a certain variation in details is noted, with much attention paid to those suggested by the modes of China. This, perhaps, is more in the introduction of color and in touches of embroidery or the application of narrow bands of bright trimming around the neck and down the side, just as one sees in the Chinese coats.

It is probably by the clever use of color that navy blue frocks of this season are distinguished from those of last.

In line they are straight and slim, with wrist-length sleeves which are sometimes tight, but quite as often bell-shaped, with dainty undersleeves of net or muslin.

For practical purposes nothing takes the place of a dark blue gown, and with the addition of a well chosen hat, shoes and stockings of correct lines and colors, and a scarf of really good fur, it constitutes a street costume that leaves nothing to be desired in the way of chic and good taste.

Afternoon and dinner gowns of lace and velvet are shown with cape or full-length Jenny sleeves. A striking gown of black velvet has cherry red and gold sleeves

There is such a youthful charm about the cape frocks and suits that it is not surprising to find them conspicuously featured in every collection of autumn and winter models, particularly among those designed for the school and college girl. One shop known from coast to coast for its youthful clothes which meet every demand of smartness and practicability makes a special point of the capette suit.

It is developed in soft woolens and consists of a frock with a silk top, a wrap-around skirt of wool and a hip-length coat which has a cape extending just over the shoulders. The collar is often fur and sometimes there are fur cuffs, but the model which has been received most enthusiastically has simply the touch of fur at the neck

Rows of pin tucks vary the straight-line silhouette of the coat dress in navy poiret twill. Bindings are beige crepe.

There are also charming little frocks of wool, velvet or velveteen. These have a short, straight or circular cape which snaps onto the shoulders and may be removed when necessary.

In one instance it is fashioned of very dark green wool. The cape is of circular cut and has a collar of gray caracul. On the frock there is a little straight Chinese collar of silver embroidery and this touch of silver is repeated in the flaring cuffs.

Warmth and Wool.

Pulled-wool comforters have taken the place, to a great extent, of those made of down. These quilts are very warm and are also very light in weight. They may be bought for varying prices according to the proportion of wool used and also the character of the cover. But it is not necessary to buy these comforters ready-made. The wool may be bought in bats as is cotton. The work of making them up is not at all difficult and takes very little time. Tufting them is quite as practical as quilting and much simpler. One may, then, secure a very inexpensive and durable bed-cover.

Hat of Gray Felt.

A small close-fitting hat of gray felt has two small flowers made of feathers poised upon the right brim. These unusual ornaments are of gray and coral color.

Diverging Twins.

The old story has been revived of the Hicktown editor who printed, among his "social" items: "Miss Mabel March, an Albany belle of twenty summers, is visiting her twin brother, aged thirty-two."

Frock in Blue Twill for Business Women

The "Jiffy" frock in blue twill, designed for business women, was displayed at a recent fashion show held in New York.

Simple and Smart Togs for Little Children

In days gone by every child was supposed to go through a period called the awkward age. In reality it was not an awkward age at all, but in those days mothers had not got beyond a certain stereotyped style of youthful dressing and did not understand the possibilities of that age between babyhood and subdeb.

Few things indicate more decidedly the progress of designing than the charming clothes created for the modern child They are colorful and exquisite, simple and smart, and, above everything else, appropriate. Perhaps the most distinctive feature of these frocks and coats is their individuality.

It does not take long for a mother to decide just what particular color is becoming to her small daughter and whether her type calls for frills and ruffles or for an almost exaggerated slimness and lack of ornamentation.

As always, certain phases of grown-up fashions are repeated in miniature. There is, for instance, the sleeveless frock with its wide frill about the neck and the tight-waisted, full-skirted dress which delights the soul of its small owner because it is so like mother's.

Outdoor garments are made of soft, light-weight wools in tones which set off the lovely coloring of childhood. They have trimmings of fur that are suitable to the years of these small persons.

Rich Fabrics Are Used in New Evening Gowns

Gorgeous is the word that best describes the evening modes of the winter. It seems as if the creators of fabrics had surpassed their previous efforts and have given to us such stuffs "as dreams are made of." Rarely has color been handled with such consummate skill and the texture is something to marvel at On the sheerest of chiffon backgrounds are woven marvelous patterns of metal threads or raised brocaded designs of velvet and chenille. Both Chinese and Persian colors and designs have been reproduced and for those of more conservative tastes there are conventional patterns of wonderful allure.

Metal fabrics, both plain and brocaded, are the medium through which many of the most exclusive houses have interpreted the mode for evening wear Because of the extreme richness of the fabrics the lines are noticeably simple.

In fact, there is more than a suggestion of the medieval in the straight, unbroken line of some of the new frocks of metal brocade.

Chinese Mode Is Given Prominence in Paris

Strange how the Chinese mode has swept over us by way of Paris. Most of the openings speak of Chinese colors and Chinese feeling, but it has remained for Lanvin to present us with coolie coats developed in all sorts of attractive fabrics the coolie never dreamed about. These she tops with mandarin hats—just to be incongistent and democratic and altogether femininely French. Since mah jongg has become so popular that special rooms in the houses of enthusiasts are being decorated as a background for play, the Chinese coats and hats ought to have strong attraction for those women who always get the new thing, and get it first.

Latest in Pumps.

The exclusive shops are showing black patent leather pumps, and they haven't a buckle or any other ornamentation. Smart dressers are buying them and they are wearing them with peach-colored stockings. Those who prefer the black hosiery are purchasing the very sheerest type. Of course the sheer black stocking is the choice for very formal wear.

Hair on Sealskins.

Sealskins have two sets of hair, one the soft, silky down next to the skin and which delights the feminine wearer, and the "overhair," or bristle, which is removed by the workmen in preparing the fur.

"FURS THAT GAIN CONFIDENCE"

We have searched the Fur Markets and secured a line of New Furs whose beauty and novelty will make scores of women happy owners of fur apparel—because we have marked the prices so low as to be simply irresistible.

It is to your decided advantage to view our offerings. Small deposit will hold your furs until called for.

FARM AND HOME BUREAU MEETING

On Saturday evening, November 3 the Farm and Home Bureau will hold a joint meeting in the basement of the Reformed Church at Bloomington. L. L. Chase, the Farm Bureau manager, will tell the men and women about the work the Ulster County Farm Bureau is doing throughout the county. Miss J. C. Fisher, manager of the Ulster County Home Bureau, will tell of the opportunities for women in the Home Bureau work.

A very amusing moving picture will be shown which will be of interest to both men and women. The meeting is open to everybody. This is one of a series of meetings which have been held throughout the county this past month and which have been very well attended in all places.

ELECTRIC CURRENT IS AUTHORIZED FOR WOODSTOCK

The United Hudson Electric Corporation was on Thursday authorized to extend its electric system into the town of Woodstock, Ulster county, and serve residents there with electricity for light, heat and power under the terms of a franchise granted by the Woodstock town board on April 24 1922. There is no company at present serving electricity in the town. While the town board franchise permits the company to distribute gas in the town no gas service is at present contemplated.

CHINESE EAT FRIED WORMS

Beetles, Spiders, Moths and Locusts Esteemed by Some People as Table Delicacies

The French eat frogs and snails and find them very appetizing. But neither of these creatures has ever been appreciated by the average Briton. It is purely a matter of prejudice.

Foreigners are far less "finicky" than we are in this respect. In Mexico many of the natives eat clay. When making pottery they take frequent mouthfuls of the material with which they are working and after a heavy shower there is quite a rush of children to see which will be the first to get a mouthful of moist earth.

Earthworms do not sound specially delicious, but they appear to be succulent enough. The Arabs are fond of them, as are the native inhabitants of some parts of India.

Some South African natives, notably Hottentots, welcome a swarm of locusts, it saves them the trouble of finding food elsewhere. They enjoy the insect raw, eating several hundreds at a meal. Arabs and Moors, though, prefer the locusts cooked in butter.

How would you like a dish of fried chrysalids? After the silkworms have spun their cocoons and turned into chrysalids the Chinese cook any which are not wanted for breeding purposes.

Moths are eaten in many parts of the world, chiefly in Australia, Africa and China. In the West Indies there is a demand for big, fat caterpillars, which are considered a great delicacy.

Spiders are plentiful enough in this country, but we never think of them as an article of diet. Yet they are quite edible. In New Caledonia and other islands of the south seas, roasted spider is a regular dish at native banquets.

Cockroaches and beetles would be something like locusts in flavor, one would imagine. They are a common dish among the natives of Africa, the West Indies and some parts of South America, where a dish of ants is also relished.—London Tit Bits.

Orderly Servant.

One of the old stock, was the host's description of James, the old and trusted head butler.

That immaculate servant knew to a nicety the right degree of servility to adopt to his master's guests, according to their rank. He never slipped, he never smiled, and to see him conducting operations at a dinner party was to see an artist at work.

And yet one night, James, the immaculate, was plainly unnerved. Courses were served in their wrong order, wine was spilt and, as a final blow, salt was upset upon a very superstitious and important old gentleman.

"Anything wrong, James?" the host had inquired, soon after the dinner started.

"No, sir," gallantly replied the old servant.

At last, however, when the ladies had retired to the drawing room, he begged a word with the host.

"I beg your pardon, sir," he murmured in a respectful undertone, "but might I have leave for a few moments now? My house is on fire!"

Few Go to Polls in Spain

A contributor to L'Europe Nouvelle cites as a symptom of the political dry rot that afflicts Spain the fact that a steadily decreasing proportion of those eligible to vote cast their ballots at each successive election.

In Madrid, for instance, less than 50 per cent of the registered voters took the trouble to record their wishes in the last campaign, although the law adds a surcharge to the taxes of citizens who shirk this public duty.

"Corruption has never been so shameless and most of the candidates elected had been practically assured of their seats by the government beforehand. Where previous arrangement had not been made, the price of votes rose to an unprecedented figure—in some instances to 500 pesetas."—Living Age.

Squeak!

"What do you feed your dog axle grease?" "It helps his waggin'."

RETAIN DRESS OF ANCESTORS

Costumes in Yucatan Are Much the Same Now as They Were in the Long Ago.

The modern Yucatan laborer has retained the dress of his ancestor, wearing crude sandals, white flaring trousers, a white jacket with a row of pockets along the bottom seam, and a colored apron wound around his hips and tucked in at the waist. The trousers are made of white duck, while cheaper trousers, work shirts and jackets are made from coarse, unbleached sheeting, locally known as "manta cruda." The apron contains a little more than a yard of cloth, and is made of ticking.

The working women wear white dresses made from such materials as bleached sheeting, cambric and longcloth, and usually trimmed around the neck, armholes and bottom with stamped flowered stripe which are made especially for this trade. White drill and cotton are used for suitings for men's clothing, blue drill principally for suits of railway employees, dock laborers and mechanics, and other articles for purposes similar to those of other countries.

No statistics of the imports of cotton piecegoods are available, but local conditions tend to give it considerable importance and volume. The natives of Yucatan take particular pride in the neatness and cleanliness of their clothing, the extent to which this is carried out being dependent largely on the economic conditions prevailing in the state.

CLING TO ANCIENT CUSTOMS

Gypsies Today Rigidly Observe the "Laws" That Have Been Their Guidance for Centuries

The gypsies of Great Britain have some very peculiar customs, which are very rigidly observed.

No gypsy regards the dog as other than an unclean servant. One of them licking a frying pan, the utensil was straightway put into the embers to burn away the evil. Another, more strict, drove a stake through the bottom of a bucket from which his dog had lapped a drink.

There is no gainsaying the true gypsy's regard for these ancient customs. He is terrified at the slightest departure from proper methods and precautions. His women must not act in the slack manner of the gajos around them. An engaged girl, for instance, must sit outside the camp circle when suitors are announced. She is not in the market, and other girls are.

The love story of a gypsy is a public affair—that is according to custom, not to any fear of moral lapse. It seems rather odd that with all these laws the gypsies should not regard the church marriage with great favor. They look upon such as merely a whim—and the strictly orthodox have a great objection to going into the presence of corpses.

Tarsus.

In apostolic times, the part of what is now Asia Minor, on the northern shore of the Mediterranean sea where the coast begins to run to the west, and opposite the Island of Cyprus, formed the province of Cilicia—one of the many provinces into which Asia Minor was divided and all forming parts of the Roman empire. To the west was Pamphylia, to the north Cappadocia and to the east Syria. Cilicia was, therefore, the highway between Syria and the central and western parts of the empire. Jews formed a considerable part of the population.

STENGEL WAS WORLD'S SERIES HERO

Stengel Sliding Over Plate After Knocking Out a Home Run in the First Game With the Yankees—It Was the Winning Run.

Game-winning home runs are not the only things Charles (Casey) Stengel has given historians of this world's series to write about when they are inscribing the championship for future generations.

He has given them a new experience, to wit:

"The gravy train!"

It's an old phrase with Casey and the Giants, but it's new to the rest of the world, and its existence wasn't discovered until after Casey's first round-trip wallop, which gave the Giants victory in the opening game.

It seems that Casey, who is the life of the Giant party and who is forever telling stories without repeating a single yarn, first began talking of the "gravy train" back in the spring. Every time a ball game was won Casey would remark:

"Well, that brings the 'gravy train' one station nearer home."

The "gravy train" means a world's series cut. The "gravy" end of it probably signifies the groceries that cut will buy, but, whatever it means, it caught on with the Giants and they've been using it ever since.

It now develops that Casey was muttering the expression to himself as he rounded the bases. It was the first thing he said when he was able to talk after his heart-breaking run in the first game, and it was the first thing he said as he stepped on home plate on his second circuit drive.

Ignorant on Inside Ball

This one sounds like an old moss-backed lie, but Bill Friel tells it for the truth:

One of those volunteer scouts approached Friel and began to tell him about a wonderful player he had seen in some country town near St. Louis, advising Bill to sign him for the Browns without delay.

Friel listened to all the good points of the phenom, and then asked:

"Does he know anything about inside baseball?"

The booster, being candid and honest, replied: "No, I don't guess he does; they haven't got an inclosed park out there where he plays, but you can teach him the difference."

Kansas City Proves Meal Ticket for Other Teams

All attendance records in the American association were shattered this season by the Kansas City Blues. According to Thomas J. Hickey, president of the league, the Missouri club played to a total of 425,000 cash customers during its season's home appearance. This eclipses its 1922 mark of 300,000 by 125,000.

Kansas City has been the savior to several clubs this year. Milwaukee was paid more than any other team for its appearances in the Blue stronghold. The season's check handed Milwaukee by the Kaysee management was $17,000.

Although a powerful gate attraction at home, the Blues have not drawn large crowds on the road. For instance, at Toledo recently they played to 70 paid admissions. Their end of the receipts amounted to $14.70.

"Bubbles" Hargrave Is Praised by John McGraw

"Bubbles" Hargrave, catcher for the Cincinnati Nationals, is hailed by John McGraw, New York's manager, as one of the steadiest receivers and the surest hitter in a pinch he has seen this season. He also praised Hargrave's throwing ability. "Bubbles" usually has the Giants tied to the bags when the Reds play against them.

Dog Objected to Ceremony.

A woman had engaged a man-servant who was new to his job, and among other things she had instructed him to always bring anything into the drawing-room on salver.

A visitor called one day with a large and ferocious-looking dog, which was left outside. When the visitor was about to go, however, his hostess wished to see the dog, so she rang the bell and told the man to bring it in.

Some minutes elapsed, but he did not appear. Suddenly the sound of angry growls, snarls and barks was heard, so the bell was rung again and the man entered carrying the salver, but with a look of distress on his face.

"Pardon me, madam," he said, with a deferential cough, "but I could not indooce the hanimal to sit on the salver. 'E knocked me down three times and bit my leg somethin' cruel. If the gentleman wants 'im, 'e's still outside."

Clock Comparatively New.

The modern clock is a comparatively new invention, and is credited to a German inventor, named Hendy de Vick, A. D. 1364. The fundamentals of De Vick's clock were identical with those of today, with the exception that he did not find out the use of the pendulum, but regulated his clock by means of balance wheels. Charles V of France was much interested in this new clock and commanded De Vick to come to Paris and install a clock in the large turret of his palace in Paris.

Wanted to Speed Up the Case.

At one stage of a tedious trial a lawyer produced some 500 checks and began introducing them into evidence one at a time. As each check required a lot of "proving," the judge thought they might well be bunched to save time. So he asked of the attorney: "Why don't you put some coal on the fire?"

"Your honor, I am putting coal on the fire," returned the attorney.

"Take a shovel. You're using a tablespoon," said the judge.

Knockout for Art.

Jud Tunkins says art is getting the worst of it again. A man can make more money layin' brick than he can playin' the ukulele.

Why Bell Was Not Answered.

A man and his wife went to call one day at a country house. They rang the bell, and as there was no reply they knocked also. Still nobody answered them, so they rang again. They kept on ringing and knocking, and although there were signs of life in the house, no attention was paid to them. Finally they turned to go, feeling justly annoyed. As they were walking down the drive they met the twins of the house. Billy and Milly, aged seven, grinned happily. "The louder you ring the less they'll come," said Billy. "Yes" added Milly. "They'll think it's us!"

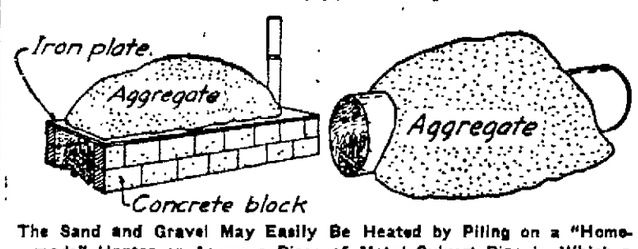
How to Heat Aggregates for Winter Concreting

TO PREVENT the freezing of concrete before the necessary chemical changes incident to its hardening have taken place, all concrete work done at temperatures below 50 degrees Fahrenheit should be carefully protected from frost. Not only the water used in mixing the concrete, but the aggregates, also, that is, the sand and pebbles, should be heated. This can be easily and quickly done right on the job, by rigging up a crude stove. Two types of such stoves are in common use.

One type consists of a section of old culvert pipe, smoke stack, boiler shell or other metal cylinder, inside of which a fire is built and the aggregate heaped over the top.

When no suitable metal pipe is available a stove may be rigged up by building low walls of concrete block or brick, covered with an iron plate. The walls need not be more than 18 to 24 inches high. With one end open and a chimney improvised at the other, a furnace is provided which will quickly and thoroughly heat the aggregates piled on top.



The Sand and Gravel May Easily Be Heated by Piling on a "Homemade" Heater or Across a Piece of Metal Culvert Pipe in Which a Fire May Be Built.

No matter what form of stove is used, it is important to keep the aggregates separate in heating, so that the fine and coarse materials may not become mixed prematurely in wrong proportions.

Each pile of aggregates should be turned over occasionally to insure uniform heating of the entire pile and to make sure that no lumps of ice or frozen material escape and get into the mixer.

URGES BANK ADS IN NEWSPAPERS

Banker Tells National Association They Are Essential Aids to Business Building.

PRESENTS PRACTICAL PLAN

Savings Bank Division of the American Bankers Association Offers Prepared Newspaper Advertising Service to Cover a Year's Campaign.

More newspaper advertising by banks as a business builder was strongly urged at the recent convention of the American Bankers Association by W. R. Morehouse of the organization's Savings Bank Division. He backed up his plea with definite action to stimulate advertising by savings banks by calling the attention of the members to a prepared newspaper advertising service developed by his division comprising copy to meet their requirements for a year's advertising schedule.

"It is my firm conviction that banks can use newspaper advertising with great success," Mr. Morehouse said. "Newspapers go into the homes—by their use as a medium the people of a whole community may be reached in a single day. Because a bank cannot directly trace a large volume of new business to newspaper advertising does not prove that the medium is ineffective as a business-builder.

"The fact that there are certain kinds of newspaper advertising which do not produce good results ought not to brand the medium as ineffective, any more than the fact that because a certain booklet or certain business-building letter fails to pull would warrant you in branding all booklets and all letters as non-productive mediums.

How to Advertise

"Newspaper advertising must be attractive and easily read if it is to produce good results. If the subject presented is not to the point, is too deeply involved for the average mind to grasp readily, is too full of big and uncommon words, it is only natural that it will not be read. If bank advertising is to accomplish its purpose it must be very simple.

"Discuss only the subjects which will make it easy for the public to patronize your bank. Advertise your bank, its financial stability, its officers, directors and stockholders and you will build prestige and strengthen public confidence in your institution. Enumerate the various kinds of service your bank is prepared to render. It has been my experience that the public is on the lookout for information about banks, banking methods and the kinds of service rendered by banks. For quick results I am a firm believer in sticking to subjects which have a direct bearing on banks, banking methods and service, until the public has become better informed about banks and the wide variety of services rendered by them.

A New Plan

"If you have not been successful with newspaper advertising try this plan. Confine your advertising within the scope of banking and especially enumerate the various services which your bank is prepared to offer. Boil down every advertisement to one hundred words or less, preferably less. Use headings which arouse interest at a glance. For example, a head 'INTEREST FROM DATE' will inspire action on the part of persons with idle funds to deposit because interest starts from the time savings accounts are opened. A heading PROTECTION FOR YOUR VALUABLES' will inspire action on the part of persons in need of protection."

HOW TO CATCH FAKE STOCK SALESMEN

Some state bankers' associations are distributing an investor's questionnaire with the idea of protecting purchasers of securities from fake stock salesmen.

"Whenever you are solicited to purchase stock or other securities, use this questionnaire before investing any of your funds," says one of these. "The questionnaire was compiled to protect the small investor and to emphasize the necessity of investigating thoroughly every investment proposition before placing any money therein. When you have been furnished with the information called for in this questionnaire, take it to any one of the banking institutions in your community and get its opinion of the stock offered. If the stock salesman refuses to fill out this questionnaire, have nothing more to do with his proposition, as it is evident that he is fostering a fraudulent promotion."

The questionnaire pins the salesman down to answering the following questions:

Date .....
Name of company .....
Name of salesman .....
Kind of stock offered .....
Total issue of stock .....
Stock given for property .....
Stock given for good-will .....
Stock given for patents .....
Are you taking any Liberty Bonds? .....
If so, at what price? .....
Amount of cash needed .....
Par value of stock .....
Market price of stock .....
Has the stock a ready market? .....
If so, where is it listed? .....
Is the stock accepted by banks as collateral for loans? .....
If so, what banks have accepted it to your knowledge? .....

Bats Are Cleanly.

Bats are very particular about their personal cleanliness. They wash their faces with the front part of the wing, and currycomb their fur with the sharp claws of their hind feet. The young are born in June and number one or two. For two weeks after birth the young hang to the mother and are carried by her on her nightly flights.

"It is true that the government has granted the former crown prince permission to return, but if he has already returned he has violated the agreement, because the date of his return is not yet agreed upon," said the statement.

Clara Kimble Young in "Cordelia, the Magnificent," is the feature picture offering.

ON the day an automobile manufacturer announces his 1924 models how much would you pay for a 1923 Sedan?

Overcoats travel the same road.

A coat that was in storage when you were fishing this summer isn't going to be any kind of a catch —not even if the price is a bait.

Auto Bumped Trolley Car.

This afternoon at the intersection of the Strand and Broadway the new Overland automobile owned and driven by Charles M. DuBois of No. 7 Lindsley avenue, bumped into a trolley car. The trolley car was not damaged, and the bumper on the front of the auto saved it from serious damage. The front mudguard was somewhat dented, but Mr. DuBois was able to proceed on his way. Mr. DuBois is known as a very careful driver. He said he did not hear the approaching trolley car until it was too late to avoid hitting it.

FOSSIL LIKE A CORNSTALK

Discovery in an Illinois Coal Mine Is Puzzling to the Scientists.

With the finding, in an Illinois coal mine, of a plant fossil resembling a cornstalk, previously accepted theories on the evolution of flowering plants are blasted, according to some botanists, and the mystery of their origin is pushed thousands of years farther back into the geological past. The strata from which the fossil was obtained were identified as belonging to the Paleozoic era, next to the oldest time division of geology, containing traces of long extinct plant and animal life. Heretofore all reported specimens of land plants possessing highly organized structures, such as attributed to this recently discovered fossil, have been found in parts of the earth's crust formed during the Mesozoic period, which came millions of years after the Paleozoic era. From these previous findings, botanists have assumed that flowering plants began to appear about the latter part of the age during which the coal-forming plants flourished. They had expected to discover more primitive growths in these strata, but the new find indicates that flowering plants had already gone through an exceedingly long process of development before the earliest period recorded in the fossil rocks.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

"SNAPPING" LIGHTNING FLASH

Photograph Easy to Make, and Shows Details Not Observed by the Eye.

The enjoyment of a thunderstorm is considerably enhanced by using a camera, or several, if one is fortunate enough to have more than one and I recommend everyone to try the experiment. The camera supplements the eye, and is able to tell us more about the details of lightning flashes than the eye can grasp in the extremely small interval of time that the flash lasts.

The photography of lightning flashes is the most simple form of photography possible, and any camera will suffice.

One has only to set the focus for a distant object, place the camera on a window sill or some support out of the rain, pointing it in the direction where the flashes appear most frequently. The shutter is then opened and allowed to remain so until one or several flashes have occurred in the correct direction. The plate may then be changed and another inserted.—Dr. William J. S. Lockyer in the London Mail.

WILTWYCK CHAPTER NOV'BER MEETING

There was a large attendance at the November meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., held at the Chapter House on Thursday afternoon. Interesting reports of the recent State D. A. R. Convention were given by the regent, Mrs. Henry Van Hoevenberg and by Mrs. Fessenden and Mrs. Oscar Edwards. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Hewitt Boice and proved one of the most entertaining and informing, given in some time. Wearing a charming Dutch costume, Mrs. Boice read a paper on "Ways and Customs in Holland," and illustrated several points in that paper with souvenirs from Holland home life. In addition little Reginald Deyo, grand-nephew of Mrs. Boice, also wearing a Dutch costume, sang two fetching songs, accompanied by Mrs. Harry Edson. The songs were, "I Have a Pain in My Sawdust," and "I Don't Want Any More Sisters," and both received great applause. The hostesses for the day were the Misses Sarah and Minnie Bernard, who served Dutch cheese sandwiches, tea and coffee to those present.

ST. STEPHEN'S TO PLAY DREXELS

At Red Sox Park at Poughkeepsie on Saturday—Saints Have Wonderful Defense and Tough Contest is Expected.

For the first time an intercollegiate football game is to be staged in a city in the Central Hudson Valley. For many years sport followers in Poughkeepsie have been trying to bring to that city an intercollegiate activity of some sort. At least the authorities of St. Stephen's saw an opportunity to fulfill this desire while benefiting themselves materially.

St. Stephen's phenomenal climb in the college athletic scale, especially in football, has brought forth much comment in the past few years. The "Saints" have been appropriately called the "Centre College of the North."

With a student body numbering a scant 125 men their eleven holds victories over such colleges as City College of New York and Hamilton, while they held the fast and heavy N. Y. U. eleven to a 14-7 count.

Coach Don Murray of St. Stephen's has developed an eleven of which he may be justly proud. The game this Saturday at Red Sox Park, Poughkeepsie, will see his charges at their best form of the season, against the fast eleven from Drexel Institute.

YOUNG JUDEAS PLAY COMETS MONDAY EVENING

The Young Judeas basketball team will open its season Monday evening at the Hebrew School Court with the fast Comets from the High School as their opponents.

Coach Lehner has had the team practicing for the last two weeks and it now looks as if the team will be in the field to cop the amateur championship of this vicinity in the 130 pound class.

The manager is rapidly filling out the schedule and has arranged games with the Triangles of Hunter, Y. M. H. A., Jrs., of Hudson and the Holy Name of Beacon.

Any teams of the 130 pound class in the city or near vicinity wishing to play the Young Judeas, notify Manager I. Reuben, 589 Broadway, city.

GERMAN SEPARATISTS RECAPTURE AIX-LA-CHAPELLE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Brussels, Nov. 2.—After a violent battle in which there were numerous casualties, German separatists succeeded in recapturing the Aix-La-Chapelle town hall from the policemen defenders, according to word received here this afternoon.

Historical Note.

Betsy Ross made an American flag out of her petticoat, but it must be explained to the younger generation that a petticoat is an undergarment women used to wear in the days of the Revolution.

STORY OF SARG'S DON QUIXOTE

An Interesting Story of The Collection of Tony Sarg's Marionettes To Be Shown at The High School November 6.

Through the casual remark dropped by a theatrical truckman, while delivering stage properties, Tony Sarg came into possession of one of the most unique and artistic marionette shows ever put into existence.

One hundred boxes containing exquisitely hand-made costumes of Spanish Toreadors, noblemen, men in armor, exquisite silk gowns with real small hand-embroidered Spanish shawls to match, hundreds of little leather shoes and boots, miniature swords, carriages, firearms and pieces of furniture of every description, horses, mules with hand-made saddles and trappings, and about fifty wooden hand-carved marionettes of very high artistic quality.

This unique collection of marionettes was brough to the United States by a Spanish company but never got beyond the Custom House. Here this collection, made at great expense and probably the product of a life time of patience, lay for seven years. It was sold at auction then to Mr. Bradley, and finally came into Tony Sarg's possession.

For six years, Mr. Sarg has waited for an opportunity to use many of the gorgeous little stage properties and his chance came with the production of Don Quixote, a veritable performance de luxe. Mr Sarg has spared nothing to make this the biggest thing he ever did. Over $10,000 have gone into this produceiton. So it happens that the little wooden actors wear real Spanish shawls and that both Don Quixote and his Squire Sancho Panza ride on saddles which any museum would be proud to own.

Although Mr. Sarg gloats over the possession of these treasures, he never forgets that somewhere there is a tragic story connected with the owners of the wonderful little production, part of which now, after twenty years, is seeing the American footlights for the first time.

When Actors Are Sad.

I once had occasion to watch a theatrical performance from behind the scenes. It happened to be the last performance of the season, probably the last performance of any stage. Between the acts the actors would occasionally salute each other with the words, spoken mournfully, "Last time." One of the actors I happened to know. As he stood waiting for his cue I said to him: "You must have had a very congenial company. They're all sorry to be breaking up." He shrugged his shoulders. "Well," he replied, "it's always hard to part with your salary. As a matter of fact, we haven't been particularly congenial. And yet we've had some good times together on the road and we've shared a lot of interesting experiences."—Exchange

Tender and True.

The restaurant owner wrote this on his window in a small western town: "For supper today: Chicken potpie, veal stew, steak and onions, pork chops."

Then below it he wrote, "Waitress and cook wanted."

Along came one wag, who erased the word "wanted."

The second wag was wittier than the first. He added, after the words "waitress and cook" "tender and true."

The restaurant owner asserted that that narrowed his list of applicants considerably, and also increased trade.

No Damage Done.

After much excitement the Smiths had at last managed to catch the train.

Now, when they could sit quietly for a while, they began to wonder if they had left anything behind.

Mrs. Smith gave a shriek.

"Oh, Harry," she gasped. "I forgot to turn off the electric iron."

"Don't worry, darling," he replied, "nothing will burn. I forgot to turn off the shower bath."—The Christian Advocate (New York).

IS OVEREATING A CRIME?

Writer Says It Is, and That Those Who Gorge Should Be Arrested.

Sometimes when I think of the dining out done by members of successive cabinets in Washington I believe it would pay the taxpayers to provide a payment to cabinet officers of, say, a hundred dollars for every dinner engagement they refused.

The district known as Wall street is becoming more canny than most places about overeating; but go up to the Bankers' club between one and three and see the quantity of meat and sweets tricked away by those who misled American parents transmitted to them in easy youth the idea that the quantity an individual ate was just the measure of his well-being.

Contrast this regime of stuffing with the diet of the Romans before Rome had come to its down grade imperial glories, and when a hardy, virile race lived on meals of little cakes and a drink of mild juice and considered it vulgar and utter folly to go gorging through every day.

We arrest men for being drunk; it would be a better thing to arrest them for measuring more at the equator than around the chest. One is an occasional misdemeanor; the other is a continuing crime. We chase the bootlegger who has operated a still in the woods; but we say nothing to the bishop who munches sweets and so operates his own still—the blind tiger beneath the waistband—which also makes men sleepy, irritable, cross and intoxicated, and threatens to make them crack.—Saturday Evening Post.

WOMEN QUIT OLD VOCATIONS

Fewer Now Employed In What Were Considered the Most Suitable Feminine Activities.

Although women are much more generally employed in what the census calls "gainful occupations" than they used to be there are decidedly fewer employed in what were formerly considered as the most suitable feminine activities. The census bureau has published some figures bearing on the matter. In the state of New York, for example, there were actually fewer women teachers, telephone operators and laundresses in 1920 than there were in 1910. As for the seamstresses and dressmakers, their number has diminished by half. On the other hand, the number of stenographers has increased in ten years from 49,281 to 103,721. Those who are engaged in clerical work are now 95,208, as against 27,191, and bookkeepers and cashiers have increased from 33,603 to 60 424. Incidentally, there are now 233 women stevedores instead of 7, and 41 women policemen, where in 1910 there were none.

Selenium Kills Weeds.

How dandelions, plantin, dock, and other broad-leaved plants have been completely banished from lawns in experiments with a new chemical spray was told by F. Marion Lougee and B. S. Hopkins at a meeting of the American Chemical society. Good control over bitter root, apple scab and other fungous diseases was also indicated. The lawn weeds were eradicated with only slight injury to blue grass and clover, but the control of the plant diseases was accompanied by considerable injury to the foliage. Selenium was used instead of the sulphur, commonly employed in such poison solutions. The most successful of these selenium sprays was found to be selenious acid and sodium selenite.

Swan Spoils Swimming Race.

A swimming race for a challenge cup at Chertsey, England, has been upset and the contest declared void by the judges, owing to the opposition of a swan. The race was in progress when a big male swan dashed across the Thames and singled out for a fierce attack a swimmer with a bald head. By treading water and waving his arms the man beat the bird off, and the swan then assaulted other swimmers so persistently that people on the bank had to go to their rescue. The swan was resolute as well as angry, and delayed the race so long that it had to be abandoned.

Did His Duty All Around.

After Constable E. L. Davidson had a fight with a restaurant man at Matoska, W Va, he swore out a warrant for himself, arrested himself, testified against himself and fined himself $10. He announced afterward that he was satisfied that he had done his duty all around, having kept his oath to uphold the law against fighting and at the same time punched a man who had been spreading false reports about him, and that he considered the $10 well spent.

Conducive to Peace of Mind.

One of the advantages of radio oratory is that the speaker never knows when he is hissed.

Welfare of Babies.

The welfare of babies depends upon the intelligence of the community and particularly upon the intelligence of their mothers, says a surgeon of the United States Public Health Service. That, he declares explains why children on one side of a street in the Panama Canal zone are as healthy as any on earth while those on the other side die off at a frightful rate.

Laid 17 Eggs in 19 Days.

Despite a daily raid on its nest by a man eager to test the bird's laying power, a house sparrow in Wellingborough, England, laid 17 eggs in 19 days. The bird then abandoned its nest and built a new one in another place.

FARBYSACK GOT DEER WITH SIXTEEN POINTS

Several deer were brought into Kingston Thursday, the first day of the open season, the largest being a buck killed by Raymond Farbysack of 161 Fourth avenue. Hanging up, it measured 8 feet 6 inches from heels to antlers and upon being dressed weighed 250 pounds. The antlers had a spread of 28¼ inches and 16 points, two of which had been broken. Farbysack was accompanied by Joseph Darwak, Frank Van Steenburg, and Henry Van Steenburg and killed the deer just back of Phoenicia. His weapon was a 20-gauge repeating shotgun and he got his shot at the deer after being in the woods 45 minutes, hitting the buck over the left eye.

BASKETBALL OPENS AT ST. MARY'S HALL

Tonight With St. Peter's Quintets as the Initial Attraction—School Boys Re-organized and Will Try to Duplicate Last Season's Colorful Record.

In the Reach Official Guide of Basketball for 1923-24 is the picture of the basketball team of St. Mary's School, claimants of the boy championship of this city for the 1922-23 season. The following record of the team is also given as follows:

St. Mary's, 38; Rajah Five, 16.
St. Mary's, 26; P. S. No. 2, 11.
St. Mary's 25; P. S. No. 5, 8.
St. Mary's 24; Young Judea, 2.
St. Mary's, 82; P .S. No. 8, 4.
St. Mary's, 20; St. Peter's, 10.
St. Mary's, 24; St. Peter's, 25.
St. Mary's, 14; St. Peter's, 13.

Last Year's team lined up as follows: E. Lang, center; B. Cullum, forward; D. Long, forward; William Scully, forward; Jack Gallagher, forward; J. Cullum, guard; E. Gilday, guard; J. Bruck, guard; L. Dohney, guard, and the following utility players: F. Murphy, J. Graney, J. Doolin, W. Crosby and T. Maroon, manager

By graduation the team loses Lang, Gallagher, J. Cullum, Gilday, Graney and Crosby. New players are being drilled for this season's schedule and another good record is expected.

The Holy Name teams of St. Mary's have been practicing very hard this week for their struggles this evening at St. Mary's Hall with the quintets from St. Peter's. Last season the Junior team had one of the best teams in their class and are also expected to give a good account of themselves this season as the team is intact.

The big team is newly organized, consisting of members of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church. This is the first season that St. Mary's was ever represented by a big team, playing on its own court. The opponents of the big team this evening consists a number of basketball players widely known in local semi-professional circles. Included in the St. Peter's lineup are Chief Murphy, J. Keonig, Ruzzo, Bruck and Wenzel. Just how St. Mary's will lineup remains to be seen.

The first game will be called at 7:45 o'clock, the second game to follow immediately afterward. The Imperial orchestra will supply the music for dancing, which will be in order following the last game.

Keen Says Texas Is Hot

"Talk about heat," says Pitcher Vic Keen of the Chicago Nationals. "Those nine or ten weeks I was in the Texas league last summer with Wichita Falls it averaged better than a hundred.

"I pitched a game one afternoon when it was 120 out there on the field, and it went 16 innings. Between rounds I stuck my feet, shoes and all, in a bucket of water to keep the spikes from blistering my feet."

GEORGE SISLER MAY NEVER PLAY AGAIN

Will Quit If Winter's Rest Fails to Restore Sight.

Despite optimistic statements to the contrary which recently found their way into print the indications are George Sisler will never play ball again.

To be cut down right in the prime of youth, before he really had reached his top form, was a bitter stroke for Sister. And not only Sisler, the St. Louis Browns, the American league, but the fans as well.

Sister, through his remarkable playing, had become the game's idol. He was Ty Cobb's successor, probably destined to become a bigger favorite than Tyrus, owing to his winning personality, and he was considered more valuable than Babe Ruth.

The latest report on Sisler is as much of a mystery as last winter when he was unable to respond to the call for spring training.

With Lee Fohl ousted as manager of the St. Louis Browns recently, it has been taken for granted that Sisler will become the manager of the club in 1924 and occupy first base.

Perhaps the former, but the latter is not assured, although it has been eight months since he was stricken with influenza.

Sisler's present drawback is the sinus affection which interferes with the perfect sight of his right eye. It is a weak nerve which controls the focus of the optic, and although it appears to be improving, Sisler today is far from being totally recovered.

"Time alone will determine my future as a ball player," said Sisler the other day in discussing the case.

"Last spring I had hopes of being in uniform on June 1. Later I postponed this desire until August 1. Then I expected to be back in the game by September 1 at the latest.

"I will not make any foolish step. Of course, I'm optimistic and I feel that the winter's rest will cure me entirely. If it doesn't, however, then I will not think about getting in the uniform again If nothing else, a ball player must have perfect vision."

The most cheerful news about Sisler is found in golf games, as he played during the last four weeks. It takes a keen eye to pick that small ball out of the rough, and Sisler has done it repeatedly with a mashie.

Even if Sisler recovers sufficiently to resume play next year, it is doubtful if he will be able to show the form that caused him to be the most-talked-about player in the game. Faulty eyesight is certain to destroy much of his confidence at the plate, and also handicap his fielding

Big Record for Errors Made by Larry Corcoran

Here is a record for booting them. In a game played May 17, 1884, Boston vs Chicago, Larry Corcoran, the regular hurler, was called on to play shortstop as the regular man was sick. Every hit was aimed at Larry, for he had twenty chances in the game, which was a nine-inning affair. Here is Corcoran's record—three putouts, seven assists, ten errors.

Fig Coffee.

It is reported in Czechoslovakia figs are prepared in substitution for coffee. Dried either in the sun or in evaporating pans, according to the climate, they are then roasted in ovens until they are quite brown and brittle, after which they are ground into a powder that is pressed into tablets. These are dissolved in hot water when "coffee" is desired.
